China's Bluebottle Fly.
To Sell, Advertise.
To Be Heard, Be Brief.
Thibetans and Turtles.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YOU KNOW the story of the good boy who would not let his sister kill the big bluebottle fly on the window pane. He told his proud and loving mother:

"I want to kill it myself."

This government and others seem to feel the same about Japan taking Chinese territory. We have certain "treaty rights" on that big Chinese bluebottle fly, and don't want them interfered with.

But China and Japan are Asiatic, and will settle their affairs in the Asiatic way, about which the west knows little.

RECENTLY, WE were moaning about Chinese bandits kidnaping our missionaries, including women, cutting off and sending back some of their fingers, as hints for ransom. Japan is attending to those bandits, which should offset her closing of the "open door," if she does close it.

Japan, well acquainted with Bre'r Rabbit, ain't sayin' nothin', but murmurs something about:

"We were attacked, so open doors do not count."

WALTER CHRYSLER, according to the New York Times, increased his sales in 1931 over 1930, particularly in the last half of 1931. Not every manufacturer can say this, and automobile shipments are slower as a rule in the second half of the year.

Mr. Chrysler offers a good product, with new features, as other automobile manufacturers are doing.

But, highly important, in addition to having what the people wanted, he LET THEM KNOW THAT HE HAD IT by energetic, efficient advertising.

During the last six months of 1931, Mr. Chrysler has concentrated extremely good advertising in the American Weekly, which has 5,500,000 circulation, and, as Albert Lasker has said, is by far the most powerful advertising medium in the United States.

BREVITY IS more than "the soul of wit." It's the saver of time, the proof of intelligence and energy.

Cromwell possessed it. His brief letters are worth 10 times more than long ones that Milton wrote for him.

Shakespeare possessed it. "The rest is silence."

ANDREW JACKSON had it, and now Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc., and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, provides a sample of it, with a moral for every business man, in reply to the question "What is the matter with the motion picture business?" Mr. Schenck wrote:

"There is nothing in this business which good pictures cannot cure."

That is necessary, put in words. There is nothing in business that cannot be cured on the same basis. Incidentally, there is nothing the matter with America that GOOD AMERICANISM cannot cure.

DEEP IN THIBET, a female English traveler discovers a tribe dating back to the ancient Chaldeans, centuries before Christ. They live on vegetables and yak milk, have no diseases, not even colds, and many pass 100 years. The women's hair hangs down wildly, men marry as late as 80, girls have no cosmetics or ornaments, combs only, made of bamboo and yak teeth.

It seems to be a wonderful opening for a beauty parlor, if you have any money.

We need not envy them. On the Galapagos Islands turtles as much as 900 years old live much as these Thibetans live. But, as was asked long ago, who wants to be a Galapagos turtle?

TWO YOUNG "Nazis," German imitations of Fascism, have been sent to jail for climbing the wall into a Jewish graveyard, toppling over gravestones and damaging others. They explained that they were drunk, but what you think when you are sober, you do when you are drunk.

Their jail sentences will help them to think.

HITLER, OF the Fascists, like Germans generally, well educated, knows the history of fellow nations Portugal and Spain. He should compare the last few hundred years in those countries with the same period in England and Holland, where Jewish intelligence has been made welcome.

Jews also might come here, and fortunes on Fifth avenue, New York, from Fourteenth to Fifty-ninth streets.

CORPORATIONS THAT wisely encourage employes to buy stock are urged by the industrial conference to sell their preferred stocks.

It is bad advice. The worker wants his utmost chance of profit, which is in the common stock. "Preferred" possibilities are limited and do not attract or stimulate ambition. Let workers have a share in their work, and let them help to make it profitable.

COUNTY FUND SHORTAGE BARED

Delinquent Tax Clerk, Bunting, Is Declared to Admit Taking of $18,000

Harry B. Bunting, chief clerk in the office of County Delinquent Tax Collector, has admitted mishandling $18,146.77 tax funds, according to announcement today by County Commissioner C. C. McGovern.

McGovern stated that Walter J. Christy, former County Delinquent Tax Collector, who went out of office the first of the year, had reported the shortage and Bunting's admission.

Auditors now examining accounts of all elective county offices were detailed to check the delinquent tax accounts. McGovern said they confirmed Christy's report.

Bunting, for a quarter of a century in the city or county employ in various positions, went home with a heart attack about a week ago. He was one of the few holdover employes of the delinquent tax office when Robert S. Cain became County Treasurer, succeeding John Francies.

Bunting was bonded for $10,000. McGovern said Christy himself would make good the remainder.

Mussolini, Grandi Decorated by Pope

ROME, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Pope Pius today further cemented the bond between the Catholic Church and the Italian state by conferring upon Premier Mussolini insignia of the Equestrian Order of the Golden Spur, high Vatican honor, and presenting Foreign Minister Dino Grandi with the cross of the "Ordine Piano."

Several days ago the Pope conferred upon King Victor Emanuel the insignia of the Supreme Order of Christ, highest honor the Vatican can bestow.

Three of Cox Army Run Down by Auto

HARRISBURG, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Three youths, who said they had been with the Rev. James R. Cox's army of unemployed, were struck by an automobile near here today as they were hiking home.

Wasie Kovasko, 16, Pittsburgh, and Joseph Compo, 18, Pricedale, were held at the Harrisburg Hospital for observation, but neither was said to be in a serious condition. John Klawcho, 19, Bellevernon, was only slightly hurt.

Taxi Men Blamed For Theft of Auto

Disgruntled taxicab drivers were blamed by police today for theft of the automobile of Walter S. Laird, of 1212 Farragut street, president of the Yellow and Green taxicab companies. The machine and a bicycle owned by Laird's son were taken from the garage in the rear of the Laird home.

Woman Given Year In Girl Mart Case

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Olive Clark Day, convicted of contributing to the delinquency of Clarice Tauber Fladebo, 16, in the operation of a Hollywood girl market, was sentenced to one year in the County Jail by Judge C. S. Tappaan.

COX PROPOSES THIRD PARTY

Father James R. Cox will lead millions of the unemployed from every city, town and hamlet of the country to the Republican and Democratic conventions if President Hoover and Congress fail to provide ample unemployment relief, he revealed today.

And if the Democrats and Republicans fail to make a pledge to do something tangible, the crusading priest plans a national movement for the selection of an independent candidate for President.

He made that assertion after declaring the march to Washington was over for him, that he was going to attend to his parish, his work in aiding the jobless and other duties.

A picture story of Father James R. Cox's Jobless March to Washington and return appears on page 7 of today's Sun-Telegraph.

ROBBERS FLEE AMID SHOTS

Three robbers escaped in a hail of bullets early today after they had been detected robbing the office of the Nicholson Meter Manufacturing Company, 421 North Braddock avenue.

Policeman Anthony Dougalla, of East End Police Station's radio cruiser, who fired at the fleeing men, said he thought one of the fugitives had been hit.

As the radio cruiser turned into Braddock avenue three men fled from the building. Officer Dougalla, on foot, pursued them through the Pennsylvania Railroad yards, firing when they refused to halt.

As the officer returned for his cruiser, a machine speeded down North Braddock avenue. In attempting to elude the police car it was wrecked on an abutment in the railroad viaduct. Its two occupants—believed members of a robber gang—escaped.

M'Closkey at 'Zero Hour' In Row With Police Chief

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Today will bring the "zero hour" in Johnstown's latest municipal battle.

Chief of Police Charles Briney has refused to resign his post as demanded by Mayor Eddie McCloskey. The Mayor said:

"He's going to be fired."

The Mayor explained:

"I offered Briney a job as ragpicker; now he'll get out. I'm going to suspend him for 10 days and meantime I'm going to find out if it is necessary for me to go into court to get rid of him."

Briney said he could not legally be removed "when I have done nothing to bring about my dismissal."

Meanwhile, Mayor McCloskey's proposal to bring back prosperity with a sidewalk-building program is attracting nation-wide attention. His plan is for the construction of sidewalks with property owner, city, state and federal governments sharing the expense equally. McCloskey said Gov. Pinchot and United States Senator James J. Davis are studying the plan.

'REPARATIONS AT END,' SAYS GERMANY

Bruening Announces Stand; Declares Nation Unable To Continue War Penalty

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Chancellor Bruening has informed Great Britain that when the Lausanne reparations conference convenes Germany will tell the world that her ability to pay reparations is at an end.

He told Sir Horace Rumbold, the British ambassador, that not only for the present but for an indefinite time to come Germany will be unable to pay.

The German delegation to the Lausanne meeting also will argue, he said, that so long as the present reparations policy continues, economic recovery for Germany and the world will be impossible.

This notification was given yesterday, but the foreign office announced it only this afternoon after reports had come from other European capitals that Dr. Bruening had said Germany would refuse to accept anything at Lausanne except complete cancellation of reparations.

In authoritative circles it was asserted that the borrowed money with which Germany hitherto has paid reparations has become "dead" and cannot be used for productive purposes.

As a result, Germany's economic structure is on the verge of a collapse which will be unavoidable if an attempt is made to maintain the present reparation policy.

If Germany is relieved of reparations, it was said, she will be able to pay her private debts in due course, but she cannot possibly pay these and reparations too.

Hitler Quits Peace Deal for Vote Drive

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Adolf Hitler turned his back on the leaders of the government last night and hurried off to the Graustarkian principality of Lippe to speak in behalf of the National Socialist candidates running in the provincial election which takes place tomorrow.

When he returns he will resume the series of conferences which came to a climax Thursday when he talked with Chancellor Bruening about extending the term of President Von Hindenburg.

Police Investigate Death of Veteran

Julius Koldasz, 36, World War veteran, died in Allegheny General Hospital this morning, a few minutes after being admitted. He had complained to Mrs. Bessie Charbal, proprietress of the rooming house at 876 River avenue, of being ill, a short time before. Doctors noticing bruises on his head notified homicide detectives who with Coroner's deputies are investigating.

HAWAII KILLING BRINGS FLEET BOYCOTT

American Woman Held in Slaying of Accused Native; Navy Bars Shore Leave

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The Navy announced today that fleet maneuvers will be carried on off the Hawaiian Islands as scheduled, but officers and men will not be given shore leave at Honolulu because of disorders there.

Admiral Pratt, chief of naval operations, instructed Admiral Schofield, commander-in-chief of the fleet, to sail immediately after completing the maneuvers February 11 to Lahina Roads, 73 miles southeast of Honolulu on the Island of Maui.

These instructions went forward today as the result of an outbreak of crime involving attacks on white women, among them the wife of a young naval officer, in Honolulu.

Mrs. Granville Fortescue, New York and Washington society woman, and Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, 27, husband of one of the woman criminally attacked, and an enlisted man, were arrested yesterday following the kidnaping and slaying of a young Hawaiian, one of five men charged with attacking Mrs. Massie.

The Navy Department announced today that Honolulu officials, after consultation with Gov. Judd, had placed the trio in custody of the Navy to prevent any possible violence. They were placed aboard the U. S. S. Alton.

The slain man, Joseph Kahahawai, was lured from a courtroom yesterday and placed in an automobile.

Police said Mrs. Fortescue, wife of a noted American soldier and author, Lieut. Massie, and E. J. Lord, enlisted man, were occupants of the automobile. Kahahawai had been shot through the heart. Mrs. Fortescue was the mother of Massie's wife.

Mrs. Fortescue, who is quite well known in social circles of Long Island, Washington and London, was driving the car.

Dry Agent 'Students' Close Campus Bars

VALPARAISO, Ind., Jan. 9.—(Universal.)—Valparaiso University today was shy two "students," but seven speakeasies near the campus were closed.

At the request of university officials, two dry agents registered and matriculated in regular classes which they attended for two months. Yesterday every speakeasy within a radius of two miles was raided and the proprietors jailed or held in bail.

Steel Orders Show 198,538-Ton Drop

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation decreased 198,538 tons in December to a total of 2,735,353 tons on December 31. The backlog dropped 185,501 tons in November.

DAVIS RESIGNS IN PHILIPPINES

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, now governor of Porto Rico, was today appointed governor general of the Philippines. President Hoover announced Roosevelt's appointment within an hour after he had received and accepted the resignation of Dwight W. Davis.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Dwight F. Davis resigned today as Governor General of the Philippines and his successor will be Theodore Roosevelt, now Governor of Porto Rico.

After conferring with President Hoover, the Governor General said there is no understanding as to when this resignation takes effect.

He plans to leave this country shortly to visit his wife and daughter, Alice, in Paris. The illness of Mrs. Davis was one of the reasons given for his resignation.

MISSING AIDE OF SCHOOLEY TO RETURN

Now Reported by Friends As Ill in Roadhouse; Two Indictments Voted

BULLETIN.

Arthur G. Burgoyne, missing investigator for former City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, indicted today, will surrender Monday and post bond, his friends announced today. Burgoyne, it was reported, has been ill in a roadhouse near Pittsburgh for several weeks, and his friends have prevailed upon him to surrender.

Indictments were returned by the December grand jury today against Roy D. Schooley, former City Treasurer, his missing aide, Arthur G. Burgoyne, and LaSalle Girts, Oakland realtor, as the climax of the investigation into Schooley's conduct of the treasury.

Schooley was indicted on charges of misdemeanor and embezzlement; Burgoyne, misdemeanor, embezzlement and fraudulent conversion, and Girts, conspiracy to cheat and defraud the city.

Schooley and Girts will be given a reasonable time to post bond pending trial in Criminal Court, District A. T. Park announced.

EXTRADITION POSSIBLE

If Burgoyne, missing for two months, can be found he will be served with a bench warrant, the prosecution said.

Park asserted:

"The charges against Burgoyne make him subject to extradition. We have a tip where he is and are continuing our search."

The date for the trial has not been set, but likely will not be before spring as the approaching trial of Major Charles H. Kline on malfeasance charges, likely will occupy Park and his assistants for probably the next two months.

Schooley, ill at his home for weeks, may not be required to appear personally and post bond, but will be permitted to sign the necessary papers at home. The amount of bond has not been fixed.

Two indictments charging misdemeanor and 19 charging embezzlement, all against Schooley, were returned by the grand jury before Judge James H. Gray, who dismissed the jurors.

BASIS OF CHARGES

The misdemeanor charges are based on Schooley's alleged failure to secure city funds, as required by law, in the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company and the Bloomfield Trust Company; for alleged knowingly receiving of worthless checks in payment for taxes and for alleged rebating of penalties and interest on delinquent taxes. Fifty-three separate acts of embezzlement are alleged, in some instances the money being diverted to his own use, in others to the Fort Pitt Hockey Club and still others to unnamed persons.

The charges against Burgoyne grew out of his alleged return to the Franklin Savings and Trust Company of Liberty bonds and other securities that had been put up as guarantee for city deposits.

Girts, an official of several realty companies, is charged with conspiring with David A. Rodgers, a clerk in the delinquent tax division, who committed suicide, and others to defraud the city.

KLINE VENUE PLEA

The Schooley probe ended without Assemblyman S. J. Grenet, for whom county detectives had sought for more than a week, appearing to testify. Prosecutor Park said he intended to keep after Grenet until he was found, indicating that the Twenty-seventh Ward Republican chairman would be haled before another grand jury. He is wanted to testify concerning loans by the Franklin bank to politicians.

While District Attorney Park would not indicate when the answer to the petition of Mayor Charles H. Kline and B. L. Sucrop for a change in venue would be filed, it is expected the document will be ready early next week.

GARNER GIVEN OVATION BY DEMOCRATS AT JACKSON DINNER

PARTY SEEKING NEW LEADER FOR 1932

Smith, Davis and Cox Hit Prohibition; Harmony on Liquor Issue Hoped For

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Chairman Raskob denounced and denied before the Democratic National Committee today stories of a "Smith-Raskob-Shouse" move against the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt of New York.

By FRASER EDWARDS
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Democracy's hosts demonstrated clearly last night at the Jackson Day dinner that they are looking for a new leader to carry their banner to victory in 1932.

Ovations were accorded Speaker John N. Garner wherever he appeared or whenever his name was mentioned at the harmony feast which was hailed as the prelude to victory.

There were also lusty cheers for Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, the only avowed candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Neither Garner nor Ritchie was accorded a place at the main speakers' table and neither was scheduled to address the gathering of 2,500 Democrats who scrambled for tickets. Both received rousing receptions.

POLITE, NOT VOCIFEROUS

By contrast, the old defeated Democratic leaders—Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis and James M. Cox—were given polite and appreciative applause, but it lacked the spontaneity of that which greeted Garner and Ritchie.

Even Al Smith failed to arouse his readily demonstrative audience with words of flaming denunciation of the administration's unemployment policy as did the silent and bowing Garner and Ritchie. And to cap it all when Smith started to speak there were cries:

"We want Garner; we want Garner."

Long split into snarling factions over prohibition, the Democrats seemed in a fair way today to achieve at least a semblance of harmony on this controversial issue, which has dogged them through 10 weary years.

Many other issues were dwelt upon by Smith, Davis and Cox in their speeches, but in a mixed audience of wets and drys it was prohibition and the necessity for Democrats getting together on it that never failed of vociferous applause—and from both sides.

ASSAILS PROHIBITION

"Al" dealt with the thorny issue in his characteristically lusty fashion. He shouted:

"What about prohibition? The United States is spending annually $160,000,000 in a senseless, useless and fruitless attempt to enforce it. Do I say it? No. That comes from the Wickersham Commission. And think of the billion dollars in revenue that we are kicking away in taxation. Next March when we all have to make up those figures for the income tax the only man exempt is the bootlegger."

Davis dwelt upon it from the standpoint of local self-government, saying:

"The way to stop encroachments of the federal government is to stop encroachments by the general government. Believe me there is health and healing in this cause, and in it is the answer to many of our perplexities and vexations, whether it be prohibition, education, social services, or what you will."

But it remained for ex-Gov. Cox to bring the diners to their feet with an emotional appeal to the South to recognize and appreciate the viewpoint of the northern wets. He called on the southern Democrats to "send back to their pulpits these political ecclesiastics so that the people may know the truth about prohibition."

Ex-Gov. Smith also outlined a platform for the relief of unemployment, after he characterized the administration policy as "defenseless."

He advocated a great governmental bond issue, sold as were Liberty bonds direct to the people and the use of the money for permanent public improvements needed in the operation of the government.

TWO GAMBLING RAIDS ON HILL

Two raids on alleged gambling resorts on the Hill district netted four prisoners, who have been released on $2,500 bail each, in a crusade started by Lieut. Thomas Gross.

Al Rice, proprietor of the Uptown Restaurant, 910 Fifth avenue, in whose place police said they confiscated 85 punch boards, obtained a postponement of his hearing before Magistrate James O'Connor in Center Avenue Police Station today. Patrolman Levi Neff said he had raided the place on complaints and confiscated the punch boards.

Oscar Rappaport, 30, Wellsford street, Hyman Eff, 83 Reed street, and Sam Rosenberg, 1600 Center avenue, were arrested when police raided an alleged numbers headquarters on the second floor of 1709 Center avenue. The prisoners denied being connected with the place and were released on bail. Police reported confiscating adding machines, typewriter and numbers books.

Said Lieut. Gross:

"I'm going to clean up the cheaters. They were told to get out and stay out, but someone has been cheating."

Slayer, Auto Thief, Doomed to Gallows

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Gilbert F. Collie, blacksmith, accused of slaying two men to gain possession of their motor cars and money, was found guilty of first degree murder by a jury last night. Superior Judge Charles Allison must condemn Collie to the gallows.

Collie was tried only for the murder of Dale Slater, whose body was found buried on the desert near Yermo, Cal. He was arrested after the body of George Walker, a carpenter, was found in a burning building near Santa Ana, last October.

$23,000 Stolen Gems Returned to Duke

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Lawrence Duke, of the tobacco family, regained last night $23,000 worth of family heirlooms stolen a fortnight ago. The jewels, parcel in a box, were handed to a policeman by Edward Doherty, unemployed and hungry. He said a stranger gave him $5 to deliver the box to police.

Detectives, tracing an envelope found in the box, arrested Samuel Perry, elevator operator in the Duke apartment house.

BIG TRACT SEEN FOR WORKHOUSE

Allegheny County may some time acquire a 1,000-acre tract of land for the workhouse, jail annex and Thorn Hill school for boys, Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said at the workhouse budget hearing yesterday. Property now occupied by the institutions is worth from $200 to $5,000 an acre, it was said, and could be sold to buy a larger tract of cheaper land.

Of the workhouse, McGovern declared:

"This should not be a boarding house for other counties' prisoners."

Warden Robert Braun answered:

"The workhouse is remunerative. Every four boarders from outside maintain one Allegheny County prisoner."

His budget was not cut.

AUDITORS SIFT COUNTY DEALS

A crew of auditors employed by Main & Co. was at work in the County Commissioners' office today laying the ground work for a general audit of the county's fiscal affairs. They started at noon yesterday, their first activity being to begin checking the minutes of the Commissioners' meetings for the last four years.

Orders were issued by the Commissioners to keep all persons who do not have specific business in the Commissioners' office outside the counter.

Since the general election the office has been crowded daily with job seekers.

Reed, Davis Act To Snub McFadden

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's two senators made good their promise to deprive Representative McFadden, of Canton, of postmaster patronage in his district, as a punishment for his recent attack on President Hoover.

Senators Reed and Davis recommended the appointment of Mrs. Maxine Jesse as postmistress at Gibson, in Susquehanna County. The recommendation was sent to Postmaster General Brown, who has said he will not consider suggestions from McFadden.

JAPAN TO DENY PACT BREAKING IN U. S. NOTE

Tokio, Drafting Answer to America, Intends to Push Activity in Manchuria

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service.

TOKIO, Jan. 9.—The Japanese government today decided it was necessary to reply to the American note invoking the nine-power treaty. The foreign office immediately proceeded to draft an answer.

It had been a subject of heated discussion among the foreign policy experts whether Japan should acknowledge the protest directly. Some officials felt the less notes dispatched, the better for international harmony.

The final decision indicated Japan intended to state her position firmly, to deny she was violating any treaties or other agreements, and to carry on her Manchurian program as planned.

Japan is undergoing a governmental crisis today following the attempt yesterday upon the life of Emperor Hirohito and the consequent resignation of the cabinet according to custom.

Today the Emperor summoned Premier Inukai, whose cabinet unfortunate enough to be in power when the assassination attempt occurred, to form a new government. The aged leader immediately convened his resigned cabinet and asked them to take office again. All accepted.

Britain Refuses to Back American Stand

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—The British Foreign Office today announced officially it would not join the United States in invoking the nine-power treaty against Japan for her Manchurian policy.

Great Britain, as a member of the League of Nations, is in a position somewhat different than that of the United States, it was pointed out unofficially, since Japan already has assured the League she will observe all her treaties regarding Manchuria.

To press the matter from here, it was said, would serve no more than to antagonize the situation. It was felt that joining the United States in her protest would not help the matter any.

The decision was announced in an official foreign office communique.

Japanese Troops Move to Halt Riots

HARBIN, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Japanese troops were dispatched toward Harbin today from Kirin to help quiet the riotous situation here. Chinese, red Russians and white Russians have been fighting for 10 days.

A Japanese bombing plane dropped two bombs on the town of Wuchan-Gushu, where fighting had broken out.

Missionaries Told To Flee Siege Peril

PEIPING, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—The American legation here today warned Lutheran missionaries in Hsikou, 10 miles from Hankow, to flee the city because of the danger arising from a Communist siege being laid about the city of Haungpei, 10 miles away.

DAWES TO SEEK NOMINATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(Universal Service.)—Gen. Charles Gates Dawes soon will become an active candidate for the Republican presidential nomination against Herbert Hoover.

Some of the closest personal and political friends of the Chicagoan placed that interpretation upon Dawes' announcement yesterday that he intends to resign as ambassador to Great Britain and will not even remain throughout the Geneva arms conference, at which he will be chairman of the American delegation.

While Dawes stated in a formal statement before leaving for Chicago last night, that he intended to return to the banking business and looked forward to renewing old association "as a private citizen of Chicago," his friends said this step was being taken to place him in a position to run for the presidency.

Weather Conditions.

Precipitation continues over the Atlantic Coast states, due to a low pressure area centered off the Carolina coast. Lowest barometer reported, 29.81 inches at Hatteras. The disturbance is producing general rains over all the coast states from New England to Florida. Another low appears in the Far Northwest, lowest barometer, 29.61 inches at Calgary. It is moving southward over the plains states, but so far is not causing much precipitation. A ridge of high pressure extends from north of Lake Superior southward over the Mississippi Valley to Texas, thence northward to the Northern California coast. This rising barometer is causing somewhat colder weather this morning than yesterday morning everywhere east of the central plains. It will be somewhat colder than last night over that section tonight, but there is no extremely cold weather indicated for the next several days.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Pittsburgh is 7.5. Lock No. 7, 17.1. Pittsburgh 17.7. Dam No. 4, 16.5. Dam No. 6, 18.0. Dam No. 10, 20.0. Dam No. 12, 21.2. The dams are down.

OFFICIALS FACE BOND QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Members of the Senate Finance Committee were considering today the summoning of State Department officials and former officials for interrogation in the committee's investigation of foreign bond flotations.

From facts uncovered by the committee in its examination of banker witnesses and from confidential information that has reached it, members of the committee are convinced that, despite State Department denial, there was a direct relation between it and the floating of a number of foreign bond issues, particularly for Latin-American governments.

This phase of the matter is being particularly studied by Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, instigator of the investigation. It was Johnson who revealed through the testimony of Grosvenor Jones, chief of the finance and investment division of the Department of Commerce, that the State Department had encouraged loans to Colombia for diplomatic purposes over the strong disapproval of his department.

Police Arrest Four In South Side Raid

Walter Daly, address unknown, complained to South Side police early today that he missed his watch after he left the home of Charles Claypoll, 24, o. 1515 Bingham street.

Police, investigating, raided the Claypoll home and arrested Claypoll and his wife, Stella, 21, charging them with being suspicious persons and keeping a disorderly house. Two others, James Cochran, 25, of 2315 Jane street, and Anna Gulpekez, 42, of 1509 Bingham street, were charged with visiting. Two gallons of moonshine whisky was reported seized by police.

Dry Officers Halted In Imperiling Autos

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 9.—Officers who have been throwing planks studded with spikes on Route 22 to stop machines which they suspect of transporting liquor were told by District Attorney Warren S. Burchinal to discontinue the practice. Motorists had filed a complaint with the Washington County Motor Club, which asked for the investigation.

3 Friendly Thieves Rob Family After Visiting

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—All in all, the three thieves who visited the home of Harold R. Goodheart last night had a good time.

Mrs. Goodheart was alone when one of them rang the doorbell. He said:

"Now just sit down and make yourself at home. We'll just wait for the others."

One got her a glass of water. Another turned on the radio, and all chatted amiably until Mr. Goodheart arrived. The gang leader said:

"Hello, Harold; take a seat, old man."

Goodheart's daughter was the next to arrive. She was greeted with:

"Good evening, Adelaide."

Dorothy Fraser, a friend of Miss Goodheart, dropped in and was made at home.

By the time Mr. Goodheart's grandfather, Raphael, 74, reached the house the robbers were on even more familiar terms. They called him as "Grandpa."

After two and a half hours of visiting, the trio took the silverware, $150 in cash, locked the five in a closet and bid them goodnight.

Husband, 15, Told to Pay Bride $2 Per Week

The youngest husband ever hailed before Desertion and Non-Support Court was ordered to pay $2 weekly for maintenance of his 19-year-old bride yesterday.

He is William C. Cook, 15, of 2708 Queensboro avenue, Brookline, a grocer's clerk, earning $10 a week.

His pretty wife, Dorothy Cook, of 967 Woodbourne avenue, Brookline, testified his mother had interfered and that they were not living together.

The young husband testified the girl persuaded him to elope to Wellsburg, W. Va., where they were married September 30.

CULBERTSON DEFEATS LENZ BY 8,980 POINTS IN BRIDGE WAR

PERSONAL FEUD CONTINUES AS BATTLE ENDS

Ely Overjoyed With Victory Over Arch-Enemy After 150 Rubbers of Contract

By J. C. OESTREICHER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The 150-rubber contract bridge battle between Ely Culbertson and Sidney Lenz was ended today, but their long standing personal feud remains very much in existence.

The marathon tournament, which may never have a parallel, passed into history shortly before midnight last night when Culbertson played out the last card of a little slam in diamonds and rose from the table, victor by 8,980 points over his arch enemy.

Teamed for the final session with his wife, Mrs. Josephine Culbertson, the originator of the approach-forcing system squeezed out a gain of 210 points during the six rubbers played, of which each team won three.

Realizing the hopelessness of attempting to achieve anything like the 20,000-point lead he held before Lenz and Commander Winfield Liggett began to make their tremendous inroads, Culbertson sat back and took it easy. To say he was content to win would be an understatement. He was overjoyed, convinced that the victory had shown beyond all doubt the superiority of his system over the 1-2-3-method of Sidney Lenz.

Any lingering hope that five weeks of continual association at a bridge table might have served to dissipate the open unfriendliness between Lenz and Culbertson was dissipated when the players rose at the conclusion of the last hand.

2 THUGS BEAT MAN; DRIVER OF AUTO SHOT

Victim of West Park Attack Unidentified in Hospital; Schenley Motorist Robbed

An unidentified middle-aged man was unconscious in the Presbyterian Hospital today, beaten by two thugs who set upon him last night in West Park.

Detective John Grayber reported George Burlett, 823 North Lincoln avenue, George West, 72 Straw street; Russell Milliron, Perrysville, and Ambrose Webber, 86 Fountain street, told him they saw the man attacked. The assailants ran as the four men hurried to the victim's assistance.

R. E. Shubert, of 3936 Penn avenue, was shot in the right arm last night by a robber who jumped on the running board of Shubert's car at Madison avenue and Lockhart street. The man fled without loot, Shubert said.

William Toph, 22 Bigelow street, told police that while he was driving in Schenley Park three bandits forced him out of his automobile and escaped with the car and $2 they took from him.

Two holdup men who robbed H. W. Reister as he was closing his butcher shop at 912 North Homewood avenue, locked him in his refrigerator and escaped with $25 and his watch.

Jesse Watson, 50, of 6538 Walnut street, was beaten by two men in Mayflower street near Ashley street. They took $2.50 from him, police said.

Forcing entry to the wholesale grocery of Abe Beckersky, of 1835 Linton street, early today, four men were arrested by Center avenue police as they were loading corn sugar onto a truck backed up to the rear door. The suspects gave their names as Tony Monzelo, 23; Harry Harris, 40; John Dumbola, 30, and Joseph Liacciono, 28.

Steve Kens, of 5151 Ladora street, reported to police that clothing valued at $75 was stolen from his automobile, parked near the Fort Pitt Hotel.

'DOCTOR' HOLDS FAKE CAREER SUCCESS

Ex-Laborer Impersonated Physician at Uniontown, Police Say at Hearing

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9, —(AP.)—A former ditch digger who is alleged to have posed for seven years as a physician and surgeon, sat silent through a police court hearing yesterday while detectives told of his treatments and operations performed in various cities.

Police said the prisoner, "Doctor" Charles B. Smith, won a commission as a physician in the Army Medical Reserve Corps, became a ship's surgeon and ran his own sanitarium.

When Smith found himself confronted with a surgical case he considered too difficult, authorities said, he called in a consultant and acted as assistant.

The investigators said Smith insisted his entire practice was a "success."

At the close of the hearing the "physician," who is 31 and a native of Philadelphia, declared he had "nothing to say." He was held in $1,000 bail.

Police said Smith obtained his medical certificate in 1929—after he had begun practicing—by impersonating a bona fide doctor in Uniontown, Pa., of the same name. They related that he wrote to the University of Maryland, from which the real Dr. Smith was graduated, and told them he had lost his certificate. He was sent a duplicate of the bona fide physician's certificate.

His final work as "physician" was at the Pennhurst State School for Feebleminded, near Perkiomeville, Pa. Two days after taking a staff position he was arrested on a charge of practicing without a license. He said he never treated anyone at Pennhurst.

GANDHI PICKETS CLOSE 'CHANGE

BOMBAY, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—The Bombay Stock Exchange was closed by the president today following picketing activities of women Nationalists.

The women Gandhists picketed the building and asked exchange members not to transact business, and the closing order was issued when it appeared useless to attempt to carry on.

The civil disobedience movement of Gandhi's followers weakened today as a result of the government's persistent campaign of arrests.

The Nationalists' resistance against the government along the frontier was almost completely suppressed with the arrest of 2,254 red shirts.

HUNDREDS FLEE RIVER FLOOD

GLENDORA, Miss., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Driven out of their homes by one of the worst floods in the history of Northwestern Mississippi, hundreds of plantation owners and tenant farmers sought refuge in higher communities last night, while rescue operations continued in the lowlands.

Thousands of acres of rich farm land lay under the floodwater that has broken levee after levee in spreading over three counties.

Photographs brought out of the lowlands showed some residents paddling about in boats, others being rescued from inundated homes, livestock being herded through several feet of water to higher ground, and refugees fleeing with their scant belongings wrapped into bundles. Homemade boats carried the marooned to higher ground in frequent instances.

Women Threaten Police Arresting Reformer

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Jan. 9.—(INS.)—A near riot in which 300 irate clubwomen threatened two state troopers, was staged in the Y. M. C. A. here this afternoon when the officers arrested a "law and order" speaker on a bad check charge.

The troopers interrupted a clubwoman's meeting to arrest Joseph Patterson, of the Constitutional Education League, on a charge of passing bad checks.

As the officers started to remove their prisoner from the dais, the women milled around, hurling insults and loudly protesting. The troopers had to shoulder their way to the door.

MEXICANS PUSH CHURCH APPEAL

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Catholic lawyers prepared today to flood the courts with 300 petitions for restraining orders in their attempt to have declared unconstitutional the new religious law limiting the clergy in the federal district to one for every 50,000 persons.

The attorneys decided to go ahead with their plan despite the fact that the Third District Court refused yesterday to grant an amparo, or restraining order, and another court declined to allow an amparo petition to be re-entered.

Appeals will be carried direct to the Supreme Court, under the plan of the lawyers. Thirty-one petitions already have been filed.

The actions are being taken under a constitutional provision that no one may suppress any religion or make any sect the official religion.

CITY TAX BILLS MAILED OUT

More than 15,000 statements for school and city taxes were in the mails today, the first consignment sent out following Council's 2½ mill reduction of the 1932 levy. Mailing will be continued daily, Controller James P. Kerr said, until the task is completed, probably by January 15.

Taxpayers who fail to receive their statements in the mails may receive bills by applying in person at the booths designated for their wards in the City-County Building corridors. Payments are made at the Treasurer's office on the first floor.

Taxes are payable this month at a 2 per cent discount, and at the face amount from January 31 to April 1, after which a penalty is added.

Believe It or Not, House Fired By Water

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 9.—(INS.)—One for Robert Believe It Or Not Ripley—

A bottle of water set fire to the house of Harry W. Boening here.

It happened thus: The bottle was sitting on top of the refrigerator.

It acted as a powerful magnifying glass as the rays of the sun shone through it upon the opposite wall. Suddenly there was a blaze, soon extinguished.

The Boenings were reading a new fire insurance policy at the time.

HEIRESS' STORY OF DEATH READ

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Impassive and apparently unperturbed, Helen Joy Morgan, 27, Flint heiress, sat in a courtroom and heard a clerk read her detailed statement, made nine months ago, of the slaying of Leslie Casteel, her garage-mechanic sweetheart.

The statement made to police after the shooting of Casteel on April 23, related that Casteel had accused Miss Morgan of discussing with police an arson case in which he had been questioned, that he had called her a "stool-pigeon" and that he threatened her with a pistol. Her statement told of a struggle which followed, and which ended when she wrested the gun from Casteel and shot him five times.

The state contended yesterday that the arson charge placed against Casteel was a desperate ruse by Miss Morgan to keep him from leaving Flint. Jealousy, the attorneys stated, was the motive for the slaying.

MINE DAMAGED BY DYNAMITE

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 9.—A charge of dynamite wrecked the engine room of the Progress mine, near Bolivar, late last night, doing an estimated damage of $1,000.

State police investigating said they found a box half filled with nitroglycerin caps, presumably used in setting off the dynamite.

The wrecked building housed the hoist used to lower cars into the workings. The mine had been working two to four days a week.

Joseph Corbi, mine superintendent for the Progress Coke Company, could offer no reason for the act.

BOY KILLS, ROBS TO SEE MOTHER

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—A confession that he shot to death Elmer D. Bartholomew, 28, Bedminister Township farmer, for the sake of taking his automobile to drive to see his sick mother was made today to District Attorney Arthur Eastburn, by Stanley Wismer, 15, a farm hand.

Eastburn said the boy admitted shooting the farmer with a rifle when Bartholomew entered his barn yesterday.

Receipt of a letter on January 6 saying his mother was sick, the youth told Eastburn, made him want to see her, but he said he did not want to ask his employer to take him to her home in Hatfield.

Blimp's Rescue of Fliers Marooned in Everglades Thrills Air Race Crowds

By AL GOUCH
Staff Correspondent

MIAMI, Jan. 9 — Two Pittsburgh pilots captured three second place honors yesterday in four major events of the fourth annual all American air races being held here. The two fliers—Jack Morris and Carl Voelter—are the only ones of the six who left Pittsburgh early this week to attend here.

The others, according to word reaching here today are wending homeward, most of the Californians along with wealth of sportsmen, from various parts of the United States.

BETTIS MANAGER WINS

Voelter, a newcomer to Pittsburgh, where he is managing Bettis Airport, was the only one of yesterday's entrants to capture two prizes. He finished a close second in the French trophy event against a field of speedy planes and took second in the sportsmen's deep-sea fishing expedition for amphibians. Morris finished second in the Edwards trophy.

Real thrills were provided at yesterday's meet, one of the biggest being the rescue of two fliers forced down in the Everglade swamps. The rescue was effected by two Goodyear blimps and an autogiro.

A. E. Rigney and J. L. Eskaris, both of Tampa, were brought into the field in full view of the cheering crowds, their ship having made a forced landing in the swamps nearly 24 hours before.

SAVED BY BLIMP

Ernest S. Hensley, another Tampa flier, sighted the stranded men in the swamps earlier in the day as he flew his autogiro into Miami for the races.

He notified officials here and two blimps were dispatched to the scene, the landing of heavier-than-air ships being impossible in the trackless Everglades. The blimp was set down without mishap and the two shipwrecked aviators taken aboard.

Today's events rung down the curtain on the three-day air classic which has brought entrants from all parts of the United States, Cuba and South America.

Mothers... Watch Children's COLDS

COMMON head colds often "settle" in throat and chest where they may become dangerous. Don't take a chance—at the first sniffle rub on Children's Musterole once every hour for five hours.

Children's Musterole is just good old Musterole, you have known so long, in milder form.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain.

Keep full strength Musterole on hand, for adults and the milder—Children's Musterole for little tots. All druggists.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

The amazingly mild winter weather has enabled many Pittsburghers to be on the hunting field even as late as January with many of the hunts having post-season fixtures. If the mildness continues, there'll probably be hunting even in February.

In addition to their fixtures, the Rolling Rock Hunt members have arranged to hold a luncheon a week from today at 12:30 o'clock for the friends of the hunt over whose farms the hunt has the privilege of crossing.

The Norman McLeods, who are at the Drake, and the Howard S. Evanses and their daughters Evelyn and Laura, who are at the Savoy-Plaza, New York, are expected home Monday.

Varying the concert season was the evening of modern dancing presented last night at Carnegie Music Hall by Mary Wigman in her Pittsburgh debut.

See Debut Of Dancer

Among the younger set there was Rita Borntraeger, one of the season's debs, in a black velvet gown. Rosamound Fitch wore an interesting gown having a shell-pink satin bodice, and a flaring skirt of black satin; Betty Childs, black satin with a bolero jacket of powder blue satin, and Madelaine Alexander, black velvet. Another black gown of lace was worn by Mary Carroll. Margaret Brill chose an interesting gown of white satin with rhinestones for accent, and her mother was in sky-blue satin. Melus Rhodes chose red crepe, and Barbara Ewing, wine-red satin.

The junior G. Andrew Benneys were there with Mrs. G. Andrew Benney, Mrs. Benney, Jr., wore black velvet with sleeves and yoke of chiffon, and Mrs. Benney, Sr., was in black velvet.

Others there were the Thomas Eddys, W. B. Millers, Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, Mrs. William Booth, Mrs. Hanson Thomas, Mrs. Eugene W. Pargny, Mrs. Howard Heinz, Mrs. Daniel M. Clemson, the A. H. Burchfields, Mrs. Frank R. Stoner and Mrs. Frank Semple.

Arkansas Girl Marries In Rennerdale Church

Yesterday morning at 11 o'clock in the Community United Presbyterian Church, Rennerdale, Pa., Miss Annie Laurie Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Reynolds of Camden, Ark., became the bride of William E. Barnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnes, of Wellsburg, W. Va. Officiating was the Rev. Milton M. Allison, formerly the Barnes family pastor, now of Rennerdale, using the marriage service from the parish book of common worship.

Mrs. Frank Johnson, sister of the bridegroom, sang, accompanied by Mrs. E. M. Arn, of Holidays Cove, W. Va., at the piano, and the bridegroom's father, on the cornet.

The bride wore a princess gown of black charmeuse with a French collar of ivory satin with an ivory satin turban, and a shoulder spray of white roses and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony, the wedding breakfast was served in the Allison home, after which Mr. and Mrs. Barnes left on a brief wedding trip to be at home later in Wellsburg, W. Va.

The bride is a graduate of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo.

The engagement of Miss Anne Buechele, of State College, to George H. Deike, Jr., of Pittsburgh, has been announced. Miss Buechele is the daughter of Andrew Buechele, of Altoona, and her fiance the son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Deike, of Sheridan avenue.

Head of Sheraden Club To Be Benefit Hostess

Mrs. C. M. Speed, president of the Sheraden Woman's Club, will be hostess at a card party in her home on Bergman street, Tuesday afternoon, as a benefit for a needy student at Carnegie Tech. At their meeting yesterday, the members heard reviews of a book, a play and current events. The book, H. A. Overstreet's "The Enduring Quest," was reviewed by Canon Edward M. Wilson, of Trinity Cathedral, who said the author suggests a philosophy of life that comes from the challenge of the unknown. Mrs. C. S. Lee chose the Connolly play, "Green Pastures," for her review, and the current events were brought by Mrs. Bruce Cobaugh. Music consisted of contralto solos by Mrs. Donald Carnahan, with Dorothy Ryan Nesbit at the piano.

Turtle Creek Women To Mark Anniversary

The thirty-second anniversary of the Turtle Creek Woman's Club will be celebrated with a covered dish luncheon in the Y. W. C. A. on January 22 in charge of the social committee. The members met last night with Mrs. W. W. Lantz, of Charles street, and heard an instructive talk on "Thrift" by Mrs. Mae Beatty, school representative of the Standard Savings Service. Miss Blanche Garvin sang to accompaniments by Mrs. Melrose Morsini, and the Brown brothers, trumpeters, offered numbers also.

Mary Wigman, latest revolutionary of the dance, gave a remarkable exhibition of her theories in Carnegie Music Hall last night. There was a large and festive audience which watched feverishly for some ancient form to revive its memories of Pavlova and Duncan, but those signs never came. And yet Mary Wigman is in the line of Duncan, for she has deserted all accepted traditions, and, again like Duncan, if her theories have obvious limitations, she is revitalizing the art of dance.

Mr. Lissfelt

Her rhythms are born of the simplest movements which themselves spring from nature's force. Be it in the gentle allegro of "Pastorale," the maniacal sweep of "Storm," the fantasies of superstition, passion, or calm in "Face of the Night," Wigman draws her inspiration from cosmic elements. Her imagination never runs amuck, for she is as conscious of pattern as Haydn was when he wrote a rondo.

Wigman's music comes out of her dance. Primitive sounds from tom-tom, piano, and shepherd's pipe accompany her movements; a music which is always right excepting when melody intrudes too far. The colors in her costumes are naively illustrative of the mood, and never further her idea; their design, as in the "Witch Dance," is quite another matter, and here with aid of a masque she created one of the most startling pantomimes in modern dance.

Force and imagination in these new theories will survive, but with Wigman's disciples changes already have come, changes toward more obvious beauty and prettiness, which this high priestess has avoided and almost destroyed.

Hahns Hasting arranged the music and with Gretl Curth played the accompaniments last night.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

HATS ON FLORENTINE LINES ARE YOUTHFUL AND PLEASING

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—Small in dimensions but great in chic, just about sums up the present millinery situation. All sorts of versions of the Florentine cap are in the air and on the head, for women like the lines of these hats and the pert note of the perky quill that sets off the rakish silhouette. Although it is essentially a style that belongs to youth, it is being worn by women of all types and ages, although, of course, unless the woman is a dainty, bird-like, little creature, the Florentine cap doesn't become her at all. But looking at these hats it is not difficult to see why even middle-aged women fall for such a delightful fashion of the Moyen Age. But whatever the type of hat, it must be pulled down one side, be set high on the opposite side. It looks rather as though this fashion is to continue, for the mid-season hats all subscribe to the same line, which is really youthful and pleasing, therefore popular.

SKETCHED TODAY are two of the very newest hats now being displayed in the leading showrooms catering to millinery. First is a beret cut rather on Florentine lines, and made of a bright green felt cut in narrow bands, with scalloped edges. It is pulled down low over the left side, while at the right side it is high and far back, this line marked by a small narrow wing of black feathers. Model from Le Monnier.

SOME OF THE newest hats just now being shown use many of the distinguishing details of the earlier models but are done in softer, lighter fabrics. For instance, the model also shown, which is by Mme. Jose, looks very much, with its twisted roll, like the velvet models shown at the beginning of the season. This particular model, however, is done in navy taffeta, with the twisted roll encircling the head, that serves as the small brim, also in taffeta. The taffeta bow has loops above as well as below the brim. It is really a splendid model for early spring wear.

Beginning Monday—

A Revolution In Retailing

THE OLD ORDER of giving customers what the store thinks the customers want has been reversed in favor of giving customers what the customers want.

Since the first of the new year, through thousands of questionnaires to people all over the county, we have been gathering facts and figures regarding people's shopping needs and their definite price wishes.

Answering our questions in the privacy of their own homes, without outside influence of any kind, the subjects (who represent a true cross-section of the entire shopping public) had an opportunity to express themselves freely, fully and frankly—which they certainly did. They were particularly specific as to quality, style, price, size and similar details.

This information was turned to instant and practical account. As rapidly as the replies supplied the necessary leads for concrete action our buyers were dispatched to the market to provide the desired articles at the prices specified by the greatest number. With accurate facts to guide them, it was easy for our buyers to obtain the wanted thing; and sometimes, in the present buyers' market, they were able to better the requested price.

The results are more convincing than the telling of them. They will be revealed for your inspection, throughout the store, Monday. Even though you did not receive, or send in a questionnaire, we believe you will find that your wants have been extraordinarily well reflected by those who did, and in every case you will find values that will meet your utmost expectations in this respect.

Numerous Pictures Delayed By Accident, Illness And Death

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, by King Features Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9.

Old timers in Hollywood are shaking their heads over the recent epidemic of "jinx" pictures—films which are delayed by a series of mishaps or tragedies.

Constance Bennett's "Lady With a Past" was the first. The death of Robert Williams threw the production into a turmoil. Paramount's "The Miracle Man" is the second. It has been hit by illness and by the death of Tyrone Power.

Miss Bennett

Now they're putting the "jinx" on R K O's "The Lost Squadron." Six writers have worked on this story. Production has been stopped once. The original supervisor, Myles Connolly, left R K O. Then Roger Manning, the technical director, was seriously burned in a fire which destroyed his apartment. Director Paul Sloan took sick and had to be replaced by George Archainbaud. Two of the principals in the picture were changed. Then Cameraman Eddie Cronjager was stricken with appendicitis. On top of this, the rains held up the production. Several days ago an airplane which was being photographed in the water started to sink too soon. They hooked a tugboat onto it, but the tug promptly went on the rocks.

And now, to cap the climax, Richard Dix is almost forced to his bed by a severe cold.

Any, or all, of these pictures may turn out to be hits. But they explain why producers turn gray.

NEWS NOTES

Ran across Madge Evans at M G M looking at a set of unretouched portraits. Joshed her about the rumor that she is absorbed in her career and not interested in men. She laughed. "But I'm not all bad," she said, "at least I like animals." Couldn't think of an answer.

Madge Evans

Saw Dorothy Mackaill and Neil Miller on my second visit to "Lucky Day." Dorothy's been sick with a cold. Still feels rocky. Vic Schertzinger sat behind me and rumbled approval of this fast-stepping revue. Talked to Bess Meredyth and Michael Curtiz at intermission. Mike refused to believe it wasn't a New York production. Lunched with Boris Karloff at Universal. Dropped into the executive dining room to say hello to Tom Mix, who was having a birthday celebration. Tom back in his white suit. Mae Clarke lunching in the Indian room. Promises to write some more poetry for this column. James Whale stopped to talk. Peter B. Kyne in conference with Carl Laemmle, Sr. Matty Kemp, whom I hadn't seen in a long time.

SOME OFFERS FOR BEBE

The stage success of Bebe Daniels in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" is bringing offers from screen and footlights. I shouldn't be surprised to see Bebe sign for the feminine lead in "Back Streets," the Fannie Hurst story coming up shortly at Universal. On the other hand, she has offers from New York. Elmer Harris is mentioned as one bidder for her services.

The Best Similes of 1931

(Ibid. meaning "See Above.")

The tenth annual crop of the year's better similes has been gathered by Mr. Frank Wilstach—and not a few of them were suggested for inclusion in Mr. Wilstach's collection by this column. Perhaps yours, if you are a contributor, of similes, are among them. Of course space here will not permit publication of the entire batch. However, here's a column full—or a Frank Wilstach of 'em:

The cloth in my pants is as thin as a six-day bike rider's tights on a Saturday night—Fred Allen. Lower than a heel—James Bishop.

Flat as a bedroom slipper—Bugs Baer. Ridiculous as Gandhi in a suit of armor—Elinor Bishop. Deserted as a street scene on a vaudeville drop—Wallace Blumberg.

Full of meaningless information as an auto salesman—Ted Cook. Puzzling as a No-Trump hand after the fifth highball—Ibid.

Contented as a movie actor in a hall of mirrors. Happy as a pedestrian who becomes a traffic court judge—Anon. Women are like gongs: they should be struck regularly—Noel Coward. Lips as merry as a man away from home—Earl Carroll.

Inevitable as the "hour ends" chimes on a radio broadcast—Henry S. Canby. Unconvincing as the masculine mannerisms of a female impersonator after doffing his wig at the end of the act—P. Culkin. Sick as a suspected judge—Dana L. Cotie. Futile as trying to read by the light in a taxicab—Russell Crouse.

Convincing as a mind reader who cannot function without putting on his glasses—John Connery. Happy as a dance hostess at the altar—V. R. Cornford. Shy as a tabloid cameraman—John A. Curtis.

As much use to us as the Dolly Sisters would be to the Notre Dame football team. Safe as a street in Chateau-Thierry in July, 1918. Her voice sounded like sandpaper on a blackboard. They came back like the 20th Century making up lost time. Dead as an animal act at the Palace—Jimmy Durante.

Quicker than a Mississippian can say, "Lynch Him!"—Ben De Casseres. Empty as the life of a flea in a horse-collar—Ibid. Fleeting as the beauty of cream in iced coffee—Peter Dixon.

Lonely as a horse-fly in Detroit—Arthur Eddy. Useless as a Cook's Tour pamphlet to a Sing Sing lifer—Ibid. Parking space is like money: there is plenty of it where it doesn't do you any good—Cincy Enquirer. I suffered like metal being cast—Robert Frost.

A kiss without a caress is like a steak without Worcestershire sauce—Zills R. Farber. Efficient as the man who never dropped the top of a tooth paste tube—Ambrose M. Feeley.

Wabbling like a made-over chin in which the paraffin had run—F. Scott Fitzgerald. The rain had come down with swift, slanting strokes, like the penmanship of an old schoolmaster—Gene Fowler. Gagged like a miser on alimony day—Ibid.

Optimistic as a trans-Atlantic flier who cables ahead for a room—Tex Guinan. Cold as a French immigration official's heart—Ibid.

A dramatic critic is like a gigolo—both get paid for what they would like to do for nothing—Robert Garland. Mumbling like a spook caught in a washing machine—Bert Green. Truth is like the sun: it will melt the icy mountains of suspicion and distrust—Gandhi.

Guilty looking as an innocent man accused of a crime—Tom J. Geraghty. Coldly critical as a baby's stare—Ibid.

Wrong as whisky at breakfast—Guy Gilpatric. Difficult to detect as perspiration on a fish—Melville Hammet. Slim as Peggy Joyce's waist—Mark Hellinger. Odd as a girdle in a chorus girl's dressing room—Montague Hurst. He came down like a parachute that failed to open—Len Hall. Optimistic as a gold digger prospecting in a Scotch poorhouse—John Harrower.

Funny as a tenor in a quartet giving an imitation of Wallace Beery—Gabriel Hess. Futile as a robin serenading a riveter—Roy Haler. Crooked as a man who double-crosses his T's—Joseph Hill. The play is as flimsy as the Owen Young plan—Perry Hammond.

Busy as a spotlight man during a bicycle act—I. Elinson. Purposeful as a trip to Reno—Judge. Golf is like a game of dice, you never know what will happen—Bobby Jones.

Rare as a chorus boy in a burlesque show—Merle Johnston. Silent as a collar-button under a bureau—John Koopman. Busy as a lip-stick at a college dance—Barrett C. Kiesling. Safe as juggling sticks of dynamite—John Kieran. Healthy as giving a rapidly rotating buzzsaw a swift punch in the teeth—Ibid.

Dangerous as a discharged stool-pigeon—Tommy Lyman. Tattered as a magazine in a dentist's waiting room—George D. Lottman. To try and protect virtue with a censorship in this world is like arming a regiment with umbrellas or meeting a plague of flies with a revolver—F. L. Lucas. Self-controlled as a man who can let his wife murder his favorite story without interrupting her—Life.

Emotionally flat—like a game of chess—Richard Lockridge. Impossible as for a woman to hide her imperfections from a dressmaker—Sydney Munden. As New Yorkish as a push-cart face in the backseat of a Rolls-Royce—Ibid. Yellow as the heart of a movie critic—Ibid. He looks like an accident about to happen—A. Maye.

Readily as a prohibition agent takes a bribe from a saloonkeeper—Henry L. Mencken. He is as full of invective as a house detective—Ogden Nash. Left me unmoved as the playing of the Abyssinian anthem—George Jean Nathan. Funny as a man in a brown derby laughing at a square-headed gal wearing an Empress Eugenie hat—Pathfinder. Burlesk shows are getting so daring that they are almost as naked as the dept. store ads for underwear ad illustrations—N. Y. Sun. Romantic as a dutiful kiss—Helen Rowland. Depressed as Walter Winchell at the news that birth control has won additional support—H. I. Phillips.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

Unsung New Yorkers

I MET HIM first about 10 years ago. Of average height, his body was as thin as his sense of humor. Those who knew him called him Slim, which is the only name I will give him here. I met him as a character around one of the speakeasies in those days. His method of earning a living required very little cultural background. He manufactured gin in a bathtub and sold it to those who would buy. Many did.

Slim and I talked upon many occasions. I enjoyed those conversations because the man was the typical Broadwayite of his class.

"What do you hope to do with yourself, Slim?" I asked him once. "You can't go on making bathtub gin forever. Got anything in mind?"

He tossed a vigorous shake of the dome in my direction.

"Your pal, Slim, is no dope," he informed me. "I'm savin' whatever dough I can and you can take it from that I'm sockin' it away. Me and this bathtub gin racket is gonna get an early divorce."

He looked around as if he were going to impart a secret of national importance. That's a common fault among the so-called tough boys. If you ask them what time it is, they whisper their replies as though they were giving you the direct inside on the Judge Crater disappearance. The same thing applies to Hollywood executives. At any rate—

"Being in the business I'm in," he went on, "it's only natural that I should be thinkin' of openin' a little cafe of my own. Nothin' elaborate, you know. Just a small joint where I can take in more than I have to hand out.

"That's okay, and I'll get that all right. But that ain't my big ambition. Not this baby. You know what I'm gonna do? I'm gonna produce shows. How do you like that?"

A producer? Slim?

"You're kidding, Slim," I told him. "What do you know about show business?"

His answer was very prompt.

"Nothin'," he returned. "But I've seen a lotta shows lately. And from what I can make out from some of 'em, those producers don't know nothin', either. Ain't my chances just as good?"

I couldn't answer that.

Like so many other small racketeers of 10 years ago, Slim did move upward in the Broadway world. With two partners, he invested in a small speakeasy on the West Side. After a year or so, he bought out one of the partners. Another six months and he bought out the other partner who, incidentally, immediately opened across the street. But Slim didn't care. He was drawing a nice trade, and he must have done well.

I didn't see him frequently at that period of his career, because the type of customer that visited his establishment was not material for the column. I met him occasionally on Broadway and then it was merely a hello and a goodbye.

It wasn't until he broke out with a much larger spot on the east side of the town that we really renewed our friendship on the old basis. He opened this new place about four years ago, I should say, and he actually had one of the hit spots in the city. That is to say, he drew an excellent crew of celebrities, gangsters, cloak and suiters and newspapermen. Just the average successful New York club.

Slim had changed. He wore dress clothes now, and he had them fashioned by the best tailors in town. He had cultivated his lingo and I think he must have done a little studying on the side. That's probably one of the great secrets in his life and I don't doubt that he often felt foolish as his English teacher gave him instructions. At any rate, it had helped him immensely.

He was making money now. Big money. His sweetie was a society girl who had left her husband because Slim was "so strong and rough and masterful." She probably wished he was a little less masterful after he had hit her on the chin one night, sent her down a flight of steps and refused to see her again. Or maybe she loved him more than ever. In any case let's not worry about it because it has nothing to do with the story.

I think it was about three years ago that we sat together in his club after the place had closed.

"Mark," he said suddenly, "do you remember a long time back when I told you I had another ambition besides running a cafe?"

I told him I did.

"Producing a play, wasn't it?" I asked. "Or did you tell me that you were going to hire the best picture actors in the business and start your own studio?"

He scowled at me. His sense of humor, evidently, had not developed as much as he had.

"You know I didn't say anything about pictures," he growled. "That's a sucker business. I told you I was going to produce a show. Well, I'm gonna do it. I got the dough now—and I think I'll do a musical comedy. I like that best because you have all the girls, and everything. There's lot of money in musical comedy. You should have heard Ray Goetz telling me about it the other night."

He went on and on along the same lines. There was little use for me to tell him anything, or to argue with him. He was convinced that he would be a sensation in the show business. And that was all there was to it.

Slim did his show. It came to Broadway a little more than a year ago. A musical effort, the cost ran to about $125,000 before the piece ever hit New York. On the opening night, he stood in the lobby in the middle of his glory. As I passed him, he gripped my hand.

"Told you I'd do it, Mark," he asserted. "The thing looks like a sure hit. And if you get a chance, speak to all the critics between the acts and tell 'em to give it a plug. Tell 'em that Slim will always be nice to them when they come to his joint. You fix it, will you, Mark?"

I went inside. The act was so brutal that it's a wonder the audience didn't march out. Concerning the second act, I am in no position to talk. I sat in Mr. Sardi's restaurant and talked to the bus boy. I had a better time.

The show, of course, closed in two weeks. Slim had taken a loss that he would probably never be able to recover.

That show did more than cost Slim a young fortune. He had neglected his business in the cafe, and when he tried to return to it, most of his customers had vanished. Before he knew what had struck him, everything he had was gone. He was back where he had been 10 years before.

Slim is working in a club on the West Side today. He is an assistant captain of some sort. I don't like to talk to him too often because of the past. But he doesn't seem to be the slightest bit embarrassed.

"You know what I'm going to do, Mark," he confided to me the other night? "I'm gonna save all the dough I can. And this time I think I'll produce a show that doesn't cost so much."

Dressler Is Aviatrix In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Marie Dressler has done many things to get a laugh, but this week she takes a flier in aviation during the progress of "Emma," her newest picture in the Penn. As Emma she is the faithful old housekeeper in the Smith family, and has saved Ronny's life by spanking him when he was born. When he grows up he persuades her to enter one of those stationary airplanes and gives her a ride which lets loose more laughter than anything on the screen in a good while.

George Seibel

"Emma" is not as powerful a story as "Min and Bill," but it has some comedy and a little overworked pathos. When Emma gets up in the coutroom and denounces her own lawyer, who is trying to save her life by pointing out the ingratitude of the children who have accused her of murder, it is a bit hard to believe. But then human nature gets all done over in Hollywood.

The picture is a laugh hit, especially when Marie follows her ball of yarn all through the railroad station nearly to Niagara Falls.

Benny Davis runs the stage show with the assistance of "Jackie" and "Sunny" and his other prodigies. They do everything — even acrobatic dancing and blues singing—all bound for Broadway.

Cohens, Kellys Keep Up Movie Adventures

Charles Murray and George Sidney are now making their twenty-fourth picture together. These two are to the films what Weber and Fields were to the stage and McIntyre and Heath were to vaudeville. They first appeared together in the original "Cohens and Kellys" in 1924. Since then these screen rivals have traveled around the globe. Now it's "Cohens and Kellys in Hollywood." Kate Price, veteran of many of their adventures, and Vera Gordon have been signed for the film, which will be directed by John Francis Dillon.

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under the weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanished and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets will help save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act really and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

Sex in Jail In Stanley Talkie

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

The movies have put sex behind the bars. The picture is "Ladies of the Big House," new Stanley feature.

It is grim melodrama. The sight of ladies behind the bars isn't pretty. However, it is suspenseful entertainment, with the silver lining ripping through at the finale.

Sylvia Sidney is the star. A bride-of-a-day, she is railroaded into prison for life while her husband is sentenced to hang. They are charged with murder.

DELAYED HONEYMOON

It looks as if the noose is going to win, but in the nick of time a crooked assistant district attorney is exposed and a delayed honeymoon gets underway.

The very blonde Gene Raymond portrays the hero role with a neat restraint.

There are some "grand" types of women assembled in this "Big House" and there's excitement.

A PERSONAL APPEARANCE

James Dunn, one of Hollywood's fair-haired boys, appears on the stage. He chatters some, sings two songs and does that emotional scene in the doctor's office that featured his film, "Bad Girl." Audiences gave him a great big hand.

Joe Penner, also is on the stage. Ever the loony one, he also is ever the popular one. Even a personal-appearing-movie-star doesn't dampen Joe's reception.

Dick Powell presents the show in pleasant style. And the song and dance acts that go to round out the bill meet the customers' approval.

As usual, Bernie Armstrong is at the organ and Dave Broudy is in the orchestra pit.

Counterfeit Mother in Picture

By MILDRED FILLMORE

A gang of smooth, dressed-up chiselers are at work on the Davis and Enright screens in a picture titled "The False Madonna." Ann Kay Francis and William (from the stage) Boyd are the leaders.

Miss Francis goes in for counterfeit mother love in this one. She masquerades as the mother of a wealthy young man who is blind and ill as a result of an airplane smashup. Her idea, of course, is to make off with a lot of currency.

However, this woman of Miss Francis isn't without a heart. A sense of belated decency crops out.

Conway Tearle is present as an attorney friend of the youthful son.

Miss Francis gives a good performance.

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Conditions in India, where Mahatma Gandhi is prosecuting his new fight for independence, are strikingly illustrated in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, being shown in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters with a vivid description by the Globe Trotter.

Big Babe Ruth, premier baseball slugger, is shown starting training in a New York gymnasium for the coming season. He does a little boxing, rides a bicycle machine and does other light exercises.

WINTER AS ARTIST

King Winter has transformed Niagara Falls into a spectacle of glistening glory. Great masses of ice frame the beautiful American falls, presenting a picture of unrivaled beauty.

Bud Jones and his brother, Fred, stage a new thriller at Lake Conway, Florida. Bud rides an aquaplane and Fred a glider. With the two machines in full flight, Bud transfers from the glider to the aquaplane, and then dives into the lake.

HORSES RACE ON ICE

At St. Moritz some of Europe's speediest horses race on the slippery ice and furnish many thrills.

What was advertised as a wrestling match at Madison Square Garden, New York, develops into boxing, football rushes, and almost everything else except ping-pong. The participants are Leon Pinetzki and Toots Mondt.

'MOVIETTE' REVIEW OF FATHER COX'S JOBLESS PARADE

RECRUITING AN ARMY

Reel One

PLEA TO HOOVER BROADCAST BY FATHER COX

Forceful Demand for U. S. Prosperity Loan Made By Jobless Army Leader

President Hoover told Father James R. Cox that the government was spending an extra $500,000,000 a year to give employment. They met in Washington Wednesday, where the President received a delegation of 14.

Father Cox, leader of the army of the unemployed and pastor of Old St. Patrick's Church, last night over WCAE, the Sun-Telegraph radio station, said he told President Hoover:

"Half a billion dollars is just a drop in the bucket."

Speaking of his visit to Washington at the head of his army of 25,000 unemployed, Father Cox said:

"President Hoover was most courteous. He received a committee of 14, when only three were expected.

CITES STRONG PLEA

"I was respectful, but I hope I was forceful in presenting the cause for which I had gone to Washington. I told him it was the duty of the executive and Congress to consider those who have nothing. I told him that perhaps my opinion was warped because I lived every day with those who have nothing.

"He told me that the vital function of the President and the federal government was to exert every effort and every power to the restoration of stability and employment in our country which has been so greatly disturbed largely from abroad.

"He said the federal government is spending half a billion dollars above normal to give employment. World depressions are like world wars. They must be fought continuously on every front.

'MERE DROP'

"I am in disagreement with President Hoover in so far as I think half a billion is a mere drop in the bucket. It is absolutely nothing.

"The Treasury Department in the last 11 years has given almost $2,000,000,000 in refunds to those who are supposed to have paid more taxes than the law demanded.

"I am also in disagreement with President Hoover in this. He claims we cannot raise funds for the necessities and direct relief. During the World War, there was raised $40,000,000,000. And what for—for nothing.

"Like Mr. Hearst, in my petition to the President and Congress I asked that $5,000,000,000 be raised for permanent improvements. They would include roads, hospitals, the removal of the hill-billy from American existence. Such a sum could be raised without trouble by taxing large incomes and inheritances.

TAXATION OF POOR

"There should be no more taxation of the underdogs. Civilizations have fallen or have been overturned by overtaxation of the poor.

"The fund should be raised in 1931, from such taxes as income and inheritance.

"I hope the President has a good heart. I know he has. If he helped to relieve unemployment as he helped relieve Belgium, it would be easily accomplished.

"But he will not be moved, it seems.

"I impressed on him that these 25,000 men were just a part of the mass that wants the situation saved by constitutional methods.

"I never pleaded more earnestly in my life."

FEW HOLD WEALTH

Father Cox emphasized that food was plentiful, but that the poor were starving. He said these stores were in the hands of the few, adding:

"It is the duty of Congress to remedy this. Congressmen are representatives of these millions of unemployed, part of the millions that own the government. Congress does not own the government; it should represent the people.

"When a great newspaper group like Mr. Hearst's supports a $5,000,000,000 plan, it must represent the people's desires. And the desires of the people should be paramount in Congress' eyes. The President and Congress must do something to halt a frenzied revolt. It is their task to save these United States.

"We believe the people want this aid, so why stand against the people? If they are making a mistake, they and time will correct it.

"You might ask: Who am I? Well, I simply spoke for 25,000 unemployed men, an army that could easily swell to 50,000,000."

Gains Point in Fight Against Extradition

Alfred Gallipoli, Pittsburgh decorator, today was winner, at least temporarily, in his fight against extradition to Atlantic City on charges of deserting his wife and two children there last August. Judge Frank P. Patterson yesterday granted Gallipoli a supersedeas, when he appealed to Superior Court and reprimanded two city detectives, who, he was informed, were about to take the prisoner from the court room across the state line.

MARCHING TO CAPITAL

Reel Two

MELLON HELPS 276 STRANDED MARCHERS

Jobless Cheer 'Swell Guy' As They 'Ride Cushions' Home at His Expense

Guests of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, 276 of Father Cox's army of jobless returned to their homes here early today from Washington.

Stranded without funds, foot-sore and almost exhausted from three days and nights of marching the "stragglers" were loaded on Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio Railroad trains for the trip homeward.

Mellon's check for $1,242 "footed" the bill.

Mellon's aid was asked after Congressman Clyde Kelly, of Edgewood, informed of the plight of the "stragglers" had appealed to the District of Columbia unemployment committee. The committee declined, explaining that its treasury was depleted by providing food for the jobless who invaded the capital to ask President Hoover for unemployment relief.

MELLON TO RESCUE

Kelly then asked the Secretary if he would help. Mellon replied:

"Certainly. See that they all get home comfortably. How many are there left?"

With the aid of Congressman Edmund Erk, of Pittsburgh, arrangements for the trip were made.

The "stragglers" gave rousing cheers for both Kelly and Erk.

Mellon had requested that his part in providing for the return of the stranded men be kept secret. Although the news leaked out to newspapermen, the remnant of Father Cox's army left Washington unaware of their benefactor's identity.

'ONE SWELL GUY'

Said one:

"All we know is that they told us some Senators and Congressmen chipped in. Who is paying for all this anyway? Who ever is is one swell guy."

They were fed at stops made at Cumberland and Hagerstown.

Six extra coaches were attached to two regular trains leaving Washington for Pittsburgh to accommodate the stragglers.

As the joyous demonstrators left they were accorded honors usually reserved for the President and foreign visitors. At the station they were escorted by police through the presidential waiting room and thence to the trains through the gate used by the President.

Meanwhile, along the route traversed by the long caravan two huge trucks, sent out by Father Cox following his arrival here, cruised the National highway between Pittsburgh and Baltimore searching for stranded men. One truck was loaded with members of the scattered army at Cumberland and Uniontown and made an early trip to Pittsburgh.

REMNANTS PICKED UP

The other, following directions of Brother Andrew, secretary to Father Cox, was to make stops at Hagerstown, Frederick and Baltimore to pick up stragglers collected there during an early morning trip over the route by Brother Andrew. Brother Andrew left Washington at 5:30 a. m. yesterday to see that stragglers were taken care of.

The army of stragglers quartered at the Salvation Army at Cumberland, awaiting transportation home, were fed by Capt. Harry MacDonald, who said he had provided them with 600 sandwiches, 20 gallons of coffee and a barrel of apples. Brother Andrew, during the trip from Washington, said he had financed the repair of a number of automobiles and their refueling.

TWO DODGE SHOTS

Ice-covered highways between Washington and Cumberland made travel extremely dangerous yesterday afternoon and stragglers proceeded with caution. There was much snow reported between Uniontown and Cumberland.

Three of the army, injured when a truck overturned on the National highway near Hagerstown late yesterday, were to be discharged from the hospital today and sent to their homes here.

Brother Andrew, who spent about 20 hours on the highway, said he encountered two men at Rankin, Md., who told him they had been fired upon when they left the road to go into a field to sleep.

Workers to Protest Miners' Sentences

A protest meeting in behalf of nine Negroes sentenced to death in Scottsboro, Ala., and 30 miners sentenced to Blawnox workhouse will be held tomorrow night at Workers Center, 2157 Center avenue, under the auspices of the Sacco-Vanzetti branch, International Labor Defense of Pittsburgh. J. Martin will be chairman.

Western Union Group Begins 5-Day Week

A five-day week, effective today, has been announced by the Western Union Telegraph Company. The action affects employes in the executive headquarters, divisional headquarters offices and all district superintendents' offices. Employes who handle messages, the majority of Western Union employes, will not be affected. The action is equivalent to an 8⅓ per cent reduction in salaries.

UNITED CARBON TO REPORT DEFICIT

Loss for 1931 Likely to Reach $100,000, Against $74,029 for Previous Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—As against previous estimates of a net loss for United Carbon Company for the full year not seriously different from that of $74,029 in the nine months to September 30, last, it appears now that a loss will be shown for the final quarter, bringing the loss for the full year in excess of $100,000.

Earlier it seemed likely operations and profits in the natural gas division would completely offset losses from the carbon black division.

GAS SALES GAIN

As was anticipated natural gas sales have undergone material expansion. Average daily sales in November ran well ahead of those of preceding months and December sales showed further increase.

Notwithstanding this improvement, however, other factors are important in estimating the full year's showing. United Carbon Company does a substantial business on forward contract with England and the abandonment by that country of the gold standard and subsequent sharp depreciation of its exchange will spell dollars losses to United.

BANK LOANS DOWN

If these losses are charged directly against earnings reported figures for the final three months seem inevitable. In addition, the carbon black company may have inventory charge-offs to make at the close of the year, however small.

United's treasury position has been improved during the past year and balance sheet at the close of December should show substantially lower bank loans and larger working capital.

Lake Erie Ports Handle More Ore

CLEVELAND, Jan. 9.—Shipments of Lake Superior iron ores from Lake Erie ports in December totaled 174,885 tons, as against 137,299 tons in December 1930. For the season, 11,188,153 tons were shipped, compared with 23,273,204 tons in 1930.

New Bond Offerings Total $2,672,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—New issues offered during the past week totaled $2,672,000. There were no issues offered in the previous week while in the like 1930 period the total was $38,995,000.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was slow today at the wholesale fruit and vegetable markets in Pittsburgh. There were no changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets showed stronger with other classes in quotations.

The poultry markets remained steady, demand good, supply adequate with supply shortage in some grades.

Cut hothouse vegetables were moderate in cars on track. Although unchanged, California apples, 1 bushel, 2 layers, 2 tiers, 2 layers, 2 tiers, potatoes, 1 bushel, 2 sweet potatoes, 1 bushel, tomatoes, 1 basket, 4 basket crate, and 4 basket crate.

STOCKS RESIST PRESSURE AND ADVANCE

Early Losses Replaced by Gains; Railroads Show Strength From Opening

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The stock market resisted pressure of week-end profit-taking and carried its advance into the fourth successive session in today's early trading.

Early losses of about a point in such leaders as U. S. Steel and American Telephone were replaced by fractional gains by the end of the first half hour. A few issues, notably rails, were strong from the start, including Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Lambert, and United Corporation preferred, up a point or so. Most of the pivotal issues moved narrowly.

Although it was suggested in some quarters that the market might have been advancing too rapidly, most brokerage houses looked for a further advance which, however, might be subject to interruption by profit-taking. Pivotal stocks, it was pointed out, had virtually duplicated their resistance levels reached in the last upturn, and bullishly inclined commentators looked for considerably higher prices if those points could be broken.

Forecasts on the United States Steel backlog statement, appearing this noon, have been rather vague, although the common stock's recent strength was regarded in some speculative quarters as an indication that the figures might be favorable. However, the steel industry operated last month at the lowest rate of the depression and Wall street was prepared for a decline in unfilled tonnage, thus maintaing the downward trend of the past several months.

Press dispatches from Europe said Germany had decided to stand for complete cancellation of reparations at the Lausanne conference. Thus that big issue in world affairs promises to come promptly to a focus.

Sterling cables were unchanged at $3.40¼.

BOND VALUES CUT IN '31

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The New York Stock Exchange made public a tabulation showing that the market or quoted value of all bonds listed on the exchange declined $19,536,317,083 during the past year.

The par value of 1,607 issues listed on January 1, 1931, aggregated $50,072,879,897 with a market value of $47,384,805,889. On January 1, this year, there were 1,601 listed issues with a par value of $52,360,023,801, with a market value of $37,848,488,806. The average price for all bonds on this date was $72.29 per $100 bond.

The decline in the quoted value of all listed issues during the final month of the year amounted to $1,663,909,801.

Pajama Producers In $1,000,000 Merger

BALTIMORE, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Merger of the Liberty Manufacturing Company and the Steiner Corporation, pajama manufacturers, into a million dollar combine was announced here by Jesse S. Fleischer, treasurer of the new firm.

The merged companies will operate nine plants in New Jersey and Pennsylvania in addition to one here, Fleischer said.

Pennsylvania Group Favors Oil Tariff

OIL CITY, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Reiteration of its stand for a tariff on imported oil was given by the Central Pennsylvania Oil Producers' Association.

Fayette Dow, of Washington, D. C., was elected vice president and general counsel of the Pennsylvania Crude Oil Association, with offices in the capital.

Quaker Oats Chief Heads Elgin Watch

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Thomas A. Potter, vice president of the Quaker Oats Company, has been elected president of the Elgin National Watch Company. He succeeds De Forest Hulburd, who retired in December as president of the Elgin company, but continues to be a director.

Cotton Membership Price Shows Drop

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The New York Cotton Exchange membership of James W. Wooten, Jr., has been sold to Leslie J. Healy for another for $14,000, a decrease of $1,000 from the last previous transaction.

SALESMEN GET NEW CHANCE IN 1932

Country Held to Be Suffering From Under-Exploitation And Lack of Enterprise

By MERRILL S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Nineteen thirty-two gives the capable salesman a chance to come into his own again.

The country is suffering from under-selling, under exploitation and a lack of enterprise and initiative.

In order to contribute to the restoration of economic health the salesmen of the country should re-instill in the public consciousness a sense of the romance of products. Real selling, of which advertising is an essential handmaiden, should in this situation not only create a desire for individual products, but should also break down the barriers of fear in men's minds, which has resulted in the existing deadlock.

Mr. Rukeyser.

NEEDS SALESMANSHIP

The country now needs the glamor of salesmanship. In 1929 it had too much of it. Now the pendulum has swung to the other extreme and we are suffering from too little of the trade-building enthusiasm that is salesmanship.

The task of creating more normal consumer behavior can be accomplished in part at least by the printed word, and there is considerable merit in the proposal by Dean Carl W. Ackerman of the Columbia School of Journalism to the effect that whole industries should advertise co-operatively to put the public in a buying frame of mind.

WATER SQUEEZED OUT

At the beginning of the depression there were excesses in the economic situation which needed to be corrected, such as the excessive freezing of bank credit in non-liquid loans and investments, misdirected foreign investments, overpricing of securities and real estate, and widespread over-exploitation of markets. But the water in the situation has been thoroughly squeezed out. Inflation has been eliminated by ruthless deflation, which has already gone too far.

Objectively, the situation warrants a revival of confidence. Subjectively, people are behaving abnormally, subject to vague fears concerning the future. With an abundance of gold, raw materials, engineering skill and an intelligent labor supply, the material basis exists for a revival of flourishing times. Only the faith to use these things wisely is lacking. Salesmanship in the highest sense of the word can contribute to the reconstruction, which is on the calendar for the current year.

FIFTEEN PASS C.P.A. TEST

The Pennsylvania State Board of Examiners for the degree of certified public accountant has announced the result of the 1931 examinations.

In the Western Pennsylvania District, 35 candidates took the examinations, admittedly one of the most stringent of the professional tests. Out of this group 15 candidates were successful in passing the examination.

Seven of the successful candidates received their preparation as members of the post-graduate class of Pittsburgh School of Accountancy.

WINDOW GLASS ORDERS GAIN

The year has started slowly in the flat glass industry, according to the American Glass Review. The first week evidenced some gain in orders over the previous fortnight but the advance was not up to expectations. Incoming orders apparently are for immediate needs and purchasers ask for and receive prompt shipments.

As was expected, demand for window glass, which had been so listless as to be almost dormant in the past two weeks of 1931, has picked up since January 2. However, the volume is not large and is below 1931 at the time. Buyers evidently are waiting for midsummer demand before ordering glass. Orders for stock replacements have not been large, but it is possible distributors are waiting completion of territorial surveys before getting their stocks in order.

While plate glass shipments display a momentary increase current demand is sluggish. Automobile manufacturers have not yet got into production and apparently await the automobile shows starting with that in New York before making up production schedules. Once these schedules are made up there should be an upturn in plate glass demand.

GENERAL TRADE SLOW HERE

There has been no particular improvement in business conditions locally since the first of the year, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review. Mild weather has not been conducive to much activity in wearing apparel lines and clearance sales are the rule with the larger merchants, but with sales comparatively light. The jobbers have been busy with inventories, and as a rule report stocks on hand much smaller than usual.

Building and other outdoor construction work is at a very low rate and attempts are being made to make a lower adjustment of wages in the building trades in hopes that building construction may be stimulated.

Conditions in the bituminous coal industry have not improved, and there is apparently little prospect of betterment in the near future.

Both wholesalers and retailers report that collections continue to average slow.

Copper Industry Plans To Check Output

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE COPPER INDUSTRY still is struggling to check overproduction. In studying industries from the standpoint of their probable participation in the next business revival we must look upon copper in much the same light as oil. Many of copper's troubles are directly attributable to internal conditions. Producers of the red metal lagged behind the recovery of general business in 1921 and 1922. Too much production was directly responsible for the failure of the industry to share in general prosperity until it had been progressing for several years.

While copper has been faced with an internal difficulty very similar to that of oil, outside factors have played a more important part. The decline in the consumption of gasoline and lubricants has been slight but the decline in the use of copper has been fairly large. The troubles of oil are almost entirely due to mistakes within the industry. Those of copper are only partially attributable to internal conditions.

A revival in general business activity may be expected to have a greater effect on the consumption of copper than on petroleum products if we assume that the increase will be in proportion to the decline. Improvement in business activity would compel power companies to resume their expansion programs and also would result in further electrification of industry. But even under boom conditions, copper must resort to control of production in order to keep stocks from becoming excessive.

Capacity 5,000,000,000 Pounds

THE COPPER INDUSTRY has a potential world capacity of about 5,000,000,000 pounds a year while under exceptional prosperity total consumption has rarely exceeded 4,000,000,000 pounds. The amount of copper above ground in blister stage and beyond indicates that the total stocks of the industry will amount to about 2,000,000,000 pounds within a short time. This is equivalent to a six-month supply even under active business conditions.

Definite steps have been taken to keep output within the limits of demand. Copper producers controlling about 93 per cent of the total capacity have agreed to reduce output to less than 60,000 tons a month. This is expected to bring world production down to about two-thirds of the present output, or about 26 per cent of capacity.

Price at 7¼ Cents

THE PRESENT PRICE copper is 7¼ cents a pound. This is 1¾ cents a pound below the low previous to 1931. The leaders in the industry believe that the check on production upon which they have just agreed will result in a gradual advance in quotations, although several months may be needed to establish any particularly marked gains. The present aim of producers is to establish a price of 12 cents a pound at which the major producers can show a fairly satisfactory profit. They expect the price for 1932 to average about 9 cents a pound.

When a revival in general business takes place, the work of reducing copper stocks will be accelerated but the extent of the recovery in the industry will be largely dependent on the success of agreements to restrict production. The investor, wishing to select stocks which will share substantially in a recovery, should view the coppers from much the same standpoint as the oils. Their share in general prosperity will be limited by developments within the industry even though general industrial recovery promises more for copper than for oil.

British Industry's Status Unfavorable

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The reaction of British industry to exchange depreciation has been less favorable than anticipated, except in a few branches. Exports have failed to improve and imports recently show a slight gain partly seasonal and partly due to imminent tariff increases. Unemployment, however, has declined, according to the Department of Commerce.

Jones & Laughlin Promotes Foster

James Caven Foster has been made manager of sales for wire products of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, it was announced today, succeeding E. D. Batchelor, who has been put in charge of a special department of general sales. Mr. Foster has been assistant manager of sales for wire products for a number of years.

MEMORIAL PARK SALES SHOW GROWTH

Number of Lot Holders Reaches 3,410; Grounds Near Completion Fast

Because death is the one inescapable human fact, a great many Pittsburghers have come to realize that it is better to buy and own a cemetery lot in advance of need than to wait until faced with the inevitable necessity of an ultimate purchase, according to William H. Sloan, of the Allegheny County Memorial Park.

This belief is substantiated by the rapid progress made in this unique development at a time when many other business projects are standing still. In the three years of its existence, 65 per cent of the total area of 100 acres comprising the park, has been completed with lawns, roads and drives. A great many actual physical improvements have already been made on the remaining 35 acres.

TOTAL SALE LARGE

On January 1, the total sale of lots reached 7,595. The number of lot holders is 3,410. The 263 interments already made in the park which is not yet completed, indicate the faith Pittsburghers have in the new conception of burial, symbolized by this development, Mr. Sloan said. The new attitude of equality in death manifested in the absence of tombstones which vary in size and elaborateness according to the means of the buried has appealed to a great many people, it appears.

In addition to the 100 acres which comprise the park proper, nearly six acres across the road from the park proper have been reserved for a service section on which the superintendent's residence and the service group of buildings will be located.

TO USE ONLY PART

Of the total area of 105.96 acres in the new development, only 62 acres will be used for burial spaces. The other 44 acres will be utilized for beautification of the park, roads, drives, flowers, trees, shrubs and fountains.

Radio programs, which for nearly three years have been broadcast over KDKA from 1:30 to 2:00 on Sunday afternoon, have been changed to from 2:00 to 2:30 in order not to conflict with Walter Damrosch's concerts, it has been announced.

STEEL INGOT PRODUCTION RISING

Beginning of March Set As Time for Substantial Boost in Mill Schedules

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel production is rising slowly, ingot output this week being at about 22 per cent against 20 per cent last week and 18 per cent the week before. No more than a slow further increase is expected for the next few weeks.

December is officially reported at 23.58 per cent against 30.01 per cent in November and 27.76 per cent in October. The November bulge was unusual and not fully explained. The tonnage decrease from October to December was hardly of unusual seasonal proportions, supporting a view that underlying conditions affecting steel demand have not lately been engaged in growing worse.

RAIL DEMAND LOW

The big decreases in activity in various steel-consuming lines had already occurred. Annual statistics of Railway Age shows only 13,614 freight cars and 219 passenger cars built in the United States in 1931, probably chiefly in the first half of the year. The low month in automobile production was November.

The low point in steel demand having been reached or passed, interest centers on improvement, and the case is clearer as to character of increase than time. Ultimate consumption always has a seasonal increase for spring, and this has usually begun at the turn of the year, by anticipation, but in present circumstances no one is disposed to anticipate any requirements, and approximately March 1 is set as the time for substantial increase, presumably with slow gains meanwhile.

PRICES EASE OFF

The finished steel market has shown some further weakening in spots, strips and sheets being easier. The declines and weaknesses that have developed in the last few weeks are disconcerting, not so much on account of their extent in dollars per ton, as on account of the turn, from the remarkably stable market that prevailed approximately from July to October, inclusive, to a situation in which the majority of products have been in a stage of weakening, and when prices once begin moving there is no assurance of stabilization afresh at any particular level.

Some companies, hitherto conservative in the matter of prices, have become decidedly aggressive. Everybody has been trying to stay in business, and has succeeded so far, but it is no simple thing for the limited demand to be distributed to all producers. Steel ingot production at 20 to 22 per cent in the last fortnight is computed against capacity ascertained for one year ago but during 1931 there was new construction adding 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 tons to the 67,000,000 tons capacity of a year ago, and there is a natural excess of steel finishing over steel making capacity, say in the neighborhood of one-third, which makes it that the average operation of all finishing capacity would be about 16 per cent.

Railroad Building 3,000 Freight Cars

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—In four of the Northern Pacific Railway shops, work now is under full swing on the $4,500,000 freight car construction program. With the arrival of forgings, the construction of 500 box cars was put under way at Laurel, Mont., the last of the shops to undertake this new work. At the Como shops in St. Paul, 500 stock cars are being built. At South Tacoma, Wash., 1,000 refrigerator cars are being turned out, while at Brainerd, Minn., 1,000 box cars are now being built.

M'KECHNIE CONFIRMS RABBIT'S SHIFT

THE POPULAR BELIEF that the release of Freddie Maguire by the Boston Nationals several weeks ago meant a decision on the part of the Brave management to shift Rabbit Maranville to second base this year is confirmed by Skipper Bill McKechnie. The Wilkinsburg citizen says his tentative infield arrangement calls for Art Shires at first base, Maranville at Second, Fritz Knothe at third and Bill Urbanski at shortstop.

Rabbit Maranville

McKechnie has made several attempts to obtain an experienced infielder from one of the other big league clubs since the season closed, so that the shifting of Maranville would not be necessary, and he is still making efforts in that direction, but he admits that he entertains little hope of success. Infielders of the caliber he desires are not on the market. Bill expresses regret that he had to part with Maguire, whom he terms a fine character as well as a brilliant fielder, but says Freddie's weakness as a hitter left no other course open to him.

IT IS NOT because of any doubt of Maranville's ability to play second base satisfactorily that the Brave manager would prefer not to shift him. The item that made McKechnie hold off until the last minute before deciding to move him is that the Rabbit is so valuable at shortstop it will be a mighty hard matter to fill his place there without weakening the team on the defensive.

Pittsburgh fans are well aware that Maranville can hold down the keystone sack with the best of them. He played 152 games there for the Pirates in 1924, and the local infield of Charley Grimm, Maranville, Glenn Wright and Pie Traynor won a rating among the greatest of all time. The Rabbit also did some second base work here in 1922, for the Dodgers in 1926 and for Rochester in 1927.

SO THERE IS no doubt that the little veteran will be able to handle his new assignment this year in a manner that will leave nothing to be desired. It's not how second base will be played, but how the shortstop post will be filled, that McKechnie must worry about.

Another angle to the proposed shift is that it is likely to prolong the playing days of Maranville. He has been a physical marvel at shortstop, but he's 39 now and could hardly last much longer at the hardest position on the field. Compared to shortstop, the Rabbit considers second base a picnic. "A fellow could play that position when he had gray whiskers and had to be hauled out in a wheel chair," he said here in 1924.

M'KECHNIE ALSO ADMITS that he is still in the market for Hack Wilson. He made an offer to the St. Louis club in December for the slugging outfielder, but was unable to put the deal over at the time. After that he expressed the opinion that the Cardinals would keep Wilson for their own use, and he had practically given up hope of being able to land Hack, but in view of the latest turn in Wilson's relations with the Mound City club it will not be surprising if Bill renews his efforts to swing a trade.*

Hack Wilson

THE FACT THAT Wilson has become a holdout as the result of the St. Louis club's action in cutting his salary from $33,000 to $7,500, strengthens the opinion held by many fans that Hack will not be kept by the Cards.

The sincerity of the Cardinal management in announcing that Wilson would be retained, when it was hard to see where there could be any room for him in the St. Louis outfield, was doubted in many quarters. The present situation gives the Card bosses the out for which they may have been waiting—that no club can profit by keeping a dissatisfied player.

BOSTON IS NOT the only club willing to make a deal for Wilson, as Brooklyn also would like to obtain the services of the Martinsburg swatsmith. Manager Max Carey's visit to Hack's home town the other day was hardly of a social nature.

Clubs seeking Wilson are pointing out to the St. Louis chiefs the advisability of trading him at this time, holding that if Hack is retained and gets away to a bad start the price that can be obtained for him will take a big drop after a month or two.

DAVE KERR, one of the outstanding basketball players of all time, is in Pittsburgh, and will make this city his home and business headquarters for the next few months. Kerr has a record that is unique. As a high school player in the Philadelphia district more than a score of years back he captained a championship team, and until he retired as manager of the Cleveland Rosenblums two years ago he held the distinction of having been a player and leader on a "pennant-winning" team in every one of his connections.

IT WAS ABOUT 20 years ago when Roy Steele, Jimpsy Brown, Jackie Adams and Eddie Dolan, of Homestead, migrated to Camden, N. J., to help represent that city in the then great Eastern League. They coupled up with Kerr and collectively won the championship. Two years ago Kerr went to Ft. Wayne as manager and player and there led an all-star aggregation to the peak.

Two years later he shifted to Cleveland. The following season witnessed the formation of the American Basketball League, whereupon Dave gathered a great team for Cleveland and it romped away to a "pennant."

THOUGH THE FORFEITURE of the world featherweight fistic crown in New York state by Battling Battalino as a result of his inability to make the class poundage for his scheduled title bout with Lew Feldman is not effective in National Boxing Association territory, the 126-pound throne may be considered vacant.

If Battalino can't make the weight in New York he can't make it in any other state, and though under the N. B. A. six-month rule he would not be required to defend his title again until May and it would not be taken from him until that time, that weight of 135½ pounds makes it clear that he'll not be able to do any more defending at 126.

Battling Battalino

THIS INCREASING WEIGHT, as in the case of Mickey Walker as middleweight champion, has done what none of the rival featherweights was able to do, and has forced Battalino to step down after holding the honors since he beat Andre Routis on September 23, 1929, a longer reign than that of any other present ring champion, with the single exception of Al Brown in the bantamweight class. Battalino goes out with a creditable and honorable record. By getting his battered hands patched up through a series of operations and learning how to hit, he turned himself from a cheese champion into one of the best of the modern class leaders, meeting all of the worthy challengers in his class and defeating them decisively. As he steps into a new division to seek the lightweight title, an elimination series will be in order to determine the new featherweight king. To have awarded it to Feldman, as provided by the original New York ruling, now sensibly revoked, would have been ridiculous. Feldman is not qualified for such an award, and besides, if championships were to be handed around in that manner it would open the way for robbery. The manager of a champion who was no longer able to make the weight could match him with some one of his own selection, whom he had previously arranged to take under his charge, and thus would still be in control of the title after it was forfeited. Championships can be won only in the ring.*

NATIONAL LEAGUE

GAME TONIGHT

N. Y. Americans at Montreal Maroons.

By CARL W. SHATTO

Coach Charley Reid and his Yellow Jacket skaters had designs on third place in the International Hockey League race as they boarded a Buffalo-bound train at 9:30 this morning. The local icemen are to meet the Bisons in Fort Erie, Ont., tonight, and tomorrow they will advance on Syracuse for a duel with Mickey Roach's aggregation there tomorrow night.

Buffalo's entry is well out in front in the title race, and has suffered only three setbacks this season. The Syracuse skaters have downed the bitter defeat potion no less than 10 times and are bringing up the rear in the league standings.

TILT TRANSFERRED

The fray with the Stars originally was billed for Tuesday night, in order to eliminate some considerable traveling. The Stars are to play in Cleveland tonight, so the Sunday affair will be a second-game-in-two-nights engagement for both teams.

A Pittsburgh victory over Buffalo tonight will advance the locals into a tie with London for third place in the standings, and in the event that Windsor beats Detroit tonight, the Reidmen could gain undisputed possession of the runner-up position by winning in Syracuse tomorrow.

ROMNES HURT

Capt. Tory Gregg, out with a leg injury, will not get back into the lineup before next Thursday, when Detroit will come here, and Doc Romnes may also be out of the lineup in the Buffalo and Syracuse frays. Romnes had his right arm severely twisted some little time ago, and the injury was aggravated in Windsor last Tuesday. He disregarded his physician's orders in participating in the Thursday night game here, and suffered so much pain that he had to undergo additional treatment yesterday.

Benny McArthur Beaten by Oger

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Jan. 9.—Paul Oger, 142, of Moundsville, outpointed Benny McArthur, 140, of McKeesport, Pa., in a 10-round bout here last night. Frankie Reilly, 138, of McKeesport, Pa., outpointed Bob Owens, 136, of Morgantown, in six rounds.

SUMMERS KEEPS TITLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Jack Summers, coach at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, retained his national professional squash racquets championship yesterday by trouncing Dan Martella, of Wilmington, Del., 15-8, 15-8, 15-11, in the final match.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE BOTTLE OF NOTHING—Scientists of the General Electric Company were called upon a short time ago to provide a large bulb enclosing a vacuum for the christening of the new General Electric airplane. A "bottle of nothing" was found to be the most desirable substitute for the usual bottle of champagne, to be broken over the nose of the plane. The scientists pumped the air from the 73-cubic-inch bulb, making the vacuum 99.999,999 per cent perfect. Although this vacuum to the lay mind would appear to be perfect, the General Electric scientists maintain that approximately 370 trillion gas molecules escaped when the bulb was broken.

CLEAR GARDEN IN TICKET CASE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The State Athletic Commission has announced it found officials of Motor Square Garden, Pittsburgh, knew nothing of the recent counterfeit ticket sales Christmas Day.

The commission ordered the Garden management to change its method of sales and collection, however.

The commission barred the Linwood A. C., of Pittsburgh, from holding amateur shows because of the alleged unsatisfactory manner in which the last show was conducted.

The Ausfin (Pa.) A. C. also was barred for failure to comply with the commission's regulations.

Unless granted a special dispensation by the Attorney General, the high schools sponsoring boxing and wrestling teams will be compelled to abandon the two sports.

Representatives of George School and Liberty High School, of Bethlehem, were told they would have to abide by the provisions of the McBride law.

Section 12 of the McBride law specifies that "no person under the age of 18 shall participate in any boxing, sparring or wrestling exhibition, and no children under 16 years shall be permitted to attend as spectators."

Four men were suspended and nine reinstated. Those suspended:

Ben Chastick, Memphis, wrestler; Leo Bratti, Franklin, promoter; George Strausburger, Scranton, boxer, and James Dupon, Cleveland, O., second.

Wrestlers reinstated:

Tom Marvin, of Columbia, Tenn.; Bill Nelson, Mayor Rifflenko and George Mansh, of New York; Tiny Rochuck, of Washington; Hans Bauer and Joe Komar, of Chicago, and Sam Stein, of Newark, N. J.

Brouillard, McLarnin Title Fight Set

BOSTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Billy Ames, Boston Garden boxing matchmaker, says Jimmy McLarnin has accepted terms for a title bout with Lou Brouillard, welterweight champion, here late next month. Contracts will not be signed, Ames said, until after the champion's title bout with Jackie Fields, in Chicago, on January 28.

Sport Vignettes

Life hasn't always been a song and dance for Al Brown, the Panama Negro, who holds the world bantamweight championship . . . There were days and days when this six-foot tall bantamweight literally starved in New York waiting for his manager to get him bouts . . . Then he suddenly got going and now he is an international figure . . . He makes his first appearance in Pittsburgh against Mose Butch, local southpaw, at Motor Square Garden next Monday night and then goes on to New York to sail for bouts in London and Paris, where he has been a frequent performer.

Al Brown

Fresh from successive defeats by Newsboy Brown and Speedy Dado in Los Angeles in recent weeks, Brown will attempt to make a fresh start here . . . He is the tallest bantamweight in captivity, and he attributes his spare frame to those lean, hungry days . . . "I guess when you starve and starve until you can feel your ribs touching you just never get over it; you stay that way for the remainder of your days," he says . . . Brown has a reach of 76 inches, which gives him a long, snaky left hand with which to hold his opponents at bay, and he crosses a powerful right . . . He does not harbor the usual fear of boxers facing southpaws . . . "Northpaws or southpaws, or any other sort of paws—they all look alike to me," he says.

Brown was born in Colon, Panama Canal Zone, one of three children of a husky Western miner and a tall, willowy Negress from the Caribbean, in the days when Gen. Goethels was superintending the digging of the Panama Canal . . . Al joined the Boy Scouts in his early days and took part in a boxing tournament staged by that organization and thus got his first taste of the sport . . . When he came home with a flattened nose, his mother disapproved, and she still is opposed to his boxing career, despite the fact that his ring earnings have given her a comfortable home and luxuries to which she was not accustomed . . . In due time, Al ran away from home and smuggled his way to New York on a fruit boat . . . He got a job as a bus boy in a restaurant and hung round the gymnasiums until he was picked up by Kid Norfolk, the Negro light-heavyweight, who turned him over to the late Leo P. Flynn, Norfolk's manager.

Shortly afterward, Flynn went to Florida and Brown was left stranded in New York . . . For eight months he starved until he finally got a break, and the rest is history . . . He speaks French and Spanish fluently, not having learned English until he was well grown.

Young Rudy, the Charleroi boxer, is Rudolph Buetha in private life, and is of German extraction . . . He began fighting as Kid Boots, and changed to Young Rudy during the heyday of Rudolph Valentino . . . Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown, is not the only Mayor drafted from the ranks of the boxing game . . . Ad Thatcher, Toledo's new chief executive, is a veteran boxing promoter, and was the gent who induced Tex Rickard to plant the Dempsey-Willard fight in the Ohio city.—HARRY KECK.

RENAISSANCE COPS

The Renaissance (negro, New York) Knights championship cagers defeated the Schenleys of the West Penn League 41 to 23, at Pythian Hall last night. The Penn Five trimmed the Gusties 39 to 25, in the West Penn League, and the Trojans beat Goodwill, 29 to 27, in the Metro loop.

BAT FORFEITS FEATHER TITLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Christopher (Bat) Battalino stepped down from his featherweight throne yesterday—and he did it in a large way.

Not only did he weigh in almost 10 pounds more than the class limit of 126 pounds for a 15-round title defense against Lew Feldman last night, thus automatically depriving himself of his championship, but he forced cancellation of the entire card he was supposed to head in Madison Square Garden.

WELL OVER-WEIGHT

Battalino weighed in at 135¾, nine and three-quarter pounds above the class limit, and exactly 13 pounds more than Feldman weighed.

Gen. John J. Phelan, commissioner presiding at the scales immediately declared Battalino's title forfeited. Feldman announced he would not fight any man and concede him that much weight, and Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square Garden promoter, scurried around frantically looking for substitutes. He found none, and a few minutes later called off the fire show.

Although Battalino brought his excuse in the form of a note from Dr. John McLean, of Hartford, Commissioner Phelan would have none of it. The doctor's certificate said Battalino had injured his right knee doing roadwork January 2, had been unable to run thereafter, suffered great pain, and was thus prevented from training sufficiently to pare his weight down to the featherweight limit.

FELDMAN CLAIM DENIED

Dr. William Walker, commission physician, declared the bruise was not serious enough either to prevent his training or fighting.

Although Battalino claimed the featherweight title as soon as Battalino defaulted, he was informed by Commissioner Phelan that the claim would not be considered.

PITT, CARNEGIE, DUKES QUINTS PLAY TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

Pittsburgh's trio of basketball varsities return to the court wars tonight as the city indulges in its first full program of the season. Carnegie Tech and the Pitt Dukes hold league tilts here at home, while Pitt's Golden Panthers are doomed to spend a great portion of the campaign getting in and out of Pullmans. Tackle Syracuse at Orangemen and Syracuse.

Cliff Battles

Tonight's [illegible] tests mark the thirteenth for Pitt, the eighth for Carnegie and the second for the Dukes.

West Virginia Wesleyan, led by the scintillating Cliff Battles, sterling gridder and almost as formidable on the court, meets the Dukes in the Bluff gymnasium in the more attractive of the two local engagements. Carnegie Tech plays host to Thiel. Wesleyan stepped away to a fine start by beating West Virginia, but faltered against Waynesburg and last night returned to form by defeating Bethany. Battles provided the fireworks in each of the Bobcat starts to date and is the man the Dukes must watch tonight.

DUKES FAVORITES

Duquesne, board out Bobby Thorn's dangerous Grovers in its initial clash Tuesday. The balance and all-around strength of the Dukes make them the favorites for tonight's ball game.

Tech, having routed Wash-Jeff to a queen's taste, is figured to be too powerful for Thiel, although the Lutherans have a habit of showing unexpected strength when playing here. Coach Hogan plans to start his regular lineup.

The Pitt-Syracuse contest at Syracuse brings together two of the leading college fives of the East. Syracuse has taken five out of the six games played to date, defeating Michigan, Penn, Lehigh, Queens College and the University of Toronto. Dartmouth handed the Orangemen their only setback.

The Pitt lineup consists of more veterans than Syracuse, for Slim Elliott, the lanky center, is the only letterman of the starting five.

The lineups for tonight's games follow:

VANGS MEET MILL CREEK

The first intercity game of the indoor polo season is to be staged tonight at Hunt Armory, when the undefeated Vang polo team, of Pittsburgh, meets the Mill Creek Riding Academy, of Youngstown, in a six-chukker match.

The game is scheduled to begin at 8:30 o'clock. Col. George Cherrington will referee. The lineup:

By JULIUS LEVIN

Connelley made it eight straight in Section I and Langley and Allegheny a pair apiece in Section II as a result of yesterday's City Senior League basketball games.

Connelley handed a surprise to the dope when it defeated the strong South High quintet, Allegheny continued its spurt by defeating Peabody, and Langley won over Westinghouse by a score of 32 to 22. Phelps also gained a victory when it downed Scheuley, losers to Oliver, 25 to 23.

LANGLEY VICTOR

In Section II tonight's Langley took over Allegheny, Westinghouse 27 to 14, Allegheny outlasted Carrick 24 to 12, and South High barely beat Oliver, 30 to 27.

City Junior League contests resulted in triumphs for Schenley from Hill Gladstone and Latimer.

The Schenley W. P. I. A. L. series got under way with a victory over Latimer, 8 to 4.

Outstanding triumphs for the contenders included Bradock's upset of South High, 47 to 19; Braddock 20 to 19; Stowe's 26-14 win over Dormont; Charlton's 23-18 victory over Dakota; New Kensington's 38-19 triumph over Freeport; Homestead's 44-18 trouncing of Clairton; Elrod's 29-12 setback at the hands of Edgewood, and Munhall's 36-13 victory over McKeesport.

McKEES ROCKS COPS

McKees Rocks tripped Bridgeville, Springdale bumped Tarentum, Latrobe knocked off Connellsville, Uniontown beated Scottdale, New Brighton won from Rochester and Aliquippa bowed to Beaver.

Bellevue was trimmed by Carnegie, Freedom showed Monaca how to score, Monessen took Monongahela, Har-Brack beat Arnold, Leetsdale toppled Sewickley, Avalon whipped Ben Avon and Kittanning was on the short end to Leechburg.

East Pittsburgh, Glassport, South Brownsville, Butler, Mt. Lebanon, South Fayette, Oakdale, Dayton, Ford City, Carmichaels, Washington, Georges, Burgettstown, Ellsworth, East Pike Run, Centerville, North Union, McDonald and Canonsburg also returned W. P. I. A. L. victories.

PERRY TOPS SHADY SIDE

In non-league affrays, Perry High stepped out to defeat Shady Side Academy, 42 to 3. Verona topped St. Joseph's, Rankin won from Central Catholic, Blairsville nosed out Jeannette, Turtle Creek Union bumped the Duke Preps and Meadville tripped Rocky Grove.

Swissvale, Edgewood Cathedral and South Fayette girls' high school teams triumphed.

Moe Rubenstein's Ambridge High School basketball team took one on the chin from Rusty Lomond's Midland five. The score was 35 to 33 in an extra-time game. Steiak shot his eighth field goal of the evening to win the game.

LOUISIANA GETS BIFF JONES

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Louisiana State University has reached into the ranks of big time football and definitely landed Capt. Lawrence M. Biff Jones, former head coach at the Army, is chief mentor for the school's eleven.

Going out after a gridiron comeback in a big way, L. S. U. is still angling for Bert Ingwerson, head coach at the University of Iowa for seven years, to act as Jones' assistant.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Battles for position feature this afternoon's card of activity in the Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association Inter-Club loop, hostilities in both sectors of the bi-divisional circuit looming as exceptionally spirited as title-contenders tangle to wind up the initial half of the campaign. A full program is listed for the first time since before the holidays all teams save the Keystone A. C. top-string outfit, stepping to the mark.

In the upper section the pace-setting Pittsburgh Golf Club host entertains Coach Harold Mortlock's champion P. A. A. aggregation in fray that should affect materially the outcome of the trophy chase.

P. A. A. REFUSES DEFAULT

The Golfers, flashing such aces as McCook Reed, Felix Snowdon and Charley Lockhart, will encounter stern opposition from the Winged Head invaders, especially if, as now appears probable, Capt. Perce Siverd joins Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, Jack Evans, Capt. Fred McMahon, Dr. George Stegeman and Rod Flannery in the Red and Gray enteurage.

P. A. A. at present rates third in the standing, the Mortlock host having refused to accept default from Allegheny Country Club when the latter squadron proved unable to be on deck for last Saturday's tussle at the Fifth-and-Bigelow clubhouse. University Club second of the Class A group is at home to Allegheny today and in all likelihood will improve its situation as Golf Club and P. A. A. rip each other apart.

Secretary McCook Reed of the P. S. R. A., yesterday announced that, in order to care for such mixups as the P. A. A.-A. C. C. affair of last Saturday, in the future all matches not played on the scheduled date will be automatically defaulted to the innocent party.

EDGEWORTH UNBEATEN

On the B wheel, Bill Gordon's flying Edgeworth Club contingent visits P. A. A. for scrimmage with Jack Beatty and company. Edgeworth boasts an unfarnished record to date. The Winged Head aims to make it tough for the well-balanced leaders. The Golf Club Seconds, still seeking a single victory, round out the week-end bill by jaunting downtown for debate with the Keystone A. C.

Skating Trials May Be Postponed

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Indications were early today that the final trials for the United States Olympic speed skating team, scheduled to be held here tomorrow, will have to be postponed because of the soft condition of the ice. The weather is usually warm.

TILDEN, NUSSLEIN WIN

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Hans Nussbein and Thomas Natsch, German state Davegan Cup Rubber Team of California, and Alex Bell of New York, in the doubles play of the Eastern professional indoor championships at the Penn A. A. A. tonight defeated William T. Tilden and A. E. [illegible] 6-4, 6-4. Tilden, captain of Albert Burke, Irish champion, Nusslein won his way to the singles finals with a 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 victory over Jack Savage. Nusslein will play Bell for the title. Tilden and Francis T. Hunter advanced to the doubles final by defeating Burke and Park, 6-1, 7-5, 6-4.

GRIDDER NEAR DEATH

YOUNGSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 9.—(Special.)—Injured in a football game early in the fall season, and confronting the problem of getting only the last game, Harry Pinto, 19, of the Fairchance High School, is in the Youngstown Hospital in a critical condition. He suffered from a blood stream infection, the attending physicians say. Pinto is a senior. He played tackle.

FINNEY TO FIGHT

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 9.—Charley Finney (17 pound) Uniontown sky juice thrower, meet Frank Fiscus, of Wells burgh, recently crowned welterweight champion of Pittsburgh, in an all-star show to be held by the Drum and Bugle Corps of the Robert G. Watson Post No. 218, American Legion here, Monday, January 18.

QUICK KNOCKOUT

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Steve Dundee, Toledo, scored a lightning knockout over Jack O'Donnell, Indianapolis, in a scheduled 10-round bout here last night. O'Donnell took the count after 15 seconds of boxing in the first round, during which time he was floored twice.

WILSON OFFER TERMED AS 'FEELER'

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

In offering Hack Wilson a 1932 contract calling for $7,500, the St. Louis Cardinals are attempting to cut no less than "25 grand" off the figure Hack the Whacker played for in 1931. Wilson last year was the owner of a contract that called for $33,000. The document was signed at the Hotel Schenley in Pittsburgh where the home-run king met with President William Veeck of the Chicago club.

But Hack is not likely to accept such a cut in wages. The Redbirds of the past could not afford to, and did not pay princely salaries, except to Rogers Hornsby and one or two others. Now however, they have a comfortable treasury and they are not likely to land such a card as Wilson for a sum which often is paid to a mediocre player or a boy who has nothing like the appeal owned by Hack.

Apparently the contract sent Wilson was intended as a "feeler." Hack may get twice as much as he is offered before he dons the regalia emblematic of world supremacy.

Chillysauce

The Cardinals could pay Hack Wilson $10,000 or more and then not exceed the limit fixed by the Baseball Commissioner, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

Wilson knows a thing or two. In Brooklyn many come out early just to watch Hack miss the pitches in batting practice. Frequently madness will overtake him when the ball lands formally and below through to tinsher on his right ear. And does he get the Bronx cheer!

Don't shed tears for an impatient star. Babe Ruth, as the highest paid player in baseball, is the only player in the American League who could exert a reserve privilege to stay out of action but why should he? The Ruth appeal is heard in every American League city.

* * *

The Bambino's first showing in Pittsburgh was in mid-week in an exhibition game, yet something like 30,000 fought through the turnstiles of the Oakland Orchard. It's to match that one!

NO NEW TERMS—RICKEY

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—The St. Louis Cardinals are not contemplating to make any new terms to Hack Wilson, 1930 home run king, Branch Rickey, vice president of the Cardinals, told International News Service.

Wilson has returned his contract for 1932 unsigned to the Cardinals.

"We are not contemplating to make him a new offer," Rickey declared.

The contract offered to Wilson called for a salary of $7,500 for 1932, or a cut in salary of $25,500.

SWITCH TO FIND ROVERS TOUGH

By TOM BIRKS

Three games are scheduled in the Central Soccer League this afternoon. Many soccer fans will wend their way to Leslie Park, Lawrenceville, to watch the league-leading Union Switch aggregation clash with the Pittsburgh Rovers. This game means much to the Switch aggregation. It should be one of the fastest contests of the season.

German Sport Club goes to McKeesport to meet National Tube, and the Green-and-White clad Celtic eleven makes a trip to Tarentum.

The last meeting between the Rovers and Switch, at Swissvale, found the Swissvalers giving the Leslie Park aggregation credit for the hardest game of the season.

Dunn, Swissvale center halfback, knows the Rovers are out to put a crimp in the winning streak of the league leaders, and Nelson, McNair and the classy little Marshall will find getting goals a tough job.

How the league race will shape up is in doubt. Douglas, the defending champion, must be getting tired of postponed games, and unless something turns up it may take the easiest way out. If this happens the league will suffer a severe blow. The team has been idle four weeks. This causes players to lose their morale, and to get out of condition physically.

Syndicate Moves For Dempsey Bout

RENO, Nev., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Formation of a syndicate to attempt to obtain the services of Jack Dempsey for a boxing match against an outstanding heavyweight here Saturday night, July 2, has been announced.

The group, headed by James McKay, gambling leader, announced it will try to raise $100,000 as Dempsey's guarantee, should the former heavyweight champion accept an offer.

LONDOS VICTOR

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Jim Londos, undefeated in modern states of world wrestling champion, tossed George Kotsonaris, of Hollywood, out of the ring here last night with a crotch hold. George was unable to come back.

N. B. A. CLASS RATINGS ARE ANNOUNCED

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—The National Boxing Association has announced the ratings of leading boxers in each division on January 1, 1932, as submitted by Thomas E. Donohue, chairman of the championship committee, for the approval of the N. B. A.

The champions and leading contenders follow:

Long Explains How He Fixed 'Queer' Race

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Baron Long, one of an Agua Caliente triumvirate of horse owners, told how he engineered Wednesday's "queer" race on the track here, which resulted in sorrow to many eastern and northern bookmakers.

Long explained that he forced up the Agua Caliente mutuel odds on Linden Tree, the winner, and logically so, by a late $3,500 wager split between all other entries in the first race. Previously he said he bet $1,000 on Linden Tree with an eastern commissioner.

Linden Tree as a result paid $21.40 on each $2 mutuel ticket to win. Long said he collected $9,700 from his $1,000 wager, and lost $3,500 on his local bets, for a profit of $6,200.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Should Married Lady Accept Bachelor's Invitation?

Is it "indiscreet" for a wife to step out for an evening's pleasure with a bachelor family friend? And has a husband the right to feel "humiliated" because she does so?

Bill thinks it is, and that he has. He's the husband. It's his wife. And Bill's sore.

Of course he admits there was "nothing really wrong." He's a nice fellow. She's a nice woman. But, nevertheless, Bill feels abused.

People may talk. Wives shouldn't step—and that's that!

Do you agree with Bill?

Do you believe that a wife should have no social life save that which her husband provides? Or do you think that a wife remains a person, even after she becomes a missis, and is entitled to act as such?

Read Bill's letter, and let's heard your verdict.

"My Dear Sally:

"I want to ask you something about a problem that has been bothering me.

"Is it bad form, from a conventional viewpoint, for a wife to accept an invitation to go to the opera from a bachelor friend who has been a friend of the family for 20 years, although her husband gives his consent?

"This question has preyed on my mind for over a week now, and I would like some advice about it. I am prudish enough to feel highly humiliated by the fact that my wife did this, but still I could not, in justice, deny her this opportunity.

NO HARM IN IT

"For 25 years she has been a most loving and dutiful wife to me. Unfortunately I have had to deny her many things during our married life, because I was simply unable to give them to her, so I felt compelled to comply with her request that she might go with this man.

"She sees no harm in accepting his invitation. I, too, know that there was no real harm in it, but I cannot reconcile myself to the looks of the thing.

"I will be very grateful to you if you will give me your opinion about this matter. I can't seem to stop worrying about it.

"Does she court being talked about? BILL."

Well, brother, it sounds like you were making "Much Ado About Nothing."

Why on earth should you feel "humiliated" because your wife accepted a casual invitation from an old friend? You don't own every minute of her time and life, just because she happened to marry you. She wasn't born purely for the purpose of revolving about you. Even if she did marry you, she is still an individual and a human being, with rights of her own.

NO REASON FOR TALK

You admit yourself that there was no more to it than a friendly desire to give her an evening's pleasure, on the part of a man you've known and liked for years. Why should you feel that such a trivial thing should cause "talk"? Talk about what? I suspect that what's wrong with you is that your egotism was nicked because somebody offered her something you didn't, and she had the temerity to take it.

If she had begun stepping out on wild parties you might have some cause for worry, but your present brainstorm is all in your own imagination.

People know, in this day and age, that a man and a woman can be friends, and even spend an evening in each other's company, without going haywire. They don't expect a woman to put on a check-rein and blinders and shut herself up in a harem when she marries. The chances are that no one will think a thing about your hard-working wife going to the opera, unless you put the idea in their minds.

So cool off, big boy! Snap out of your huff, and act regular!

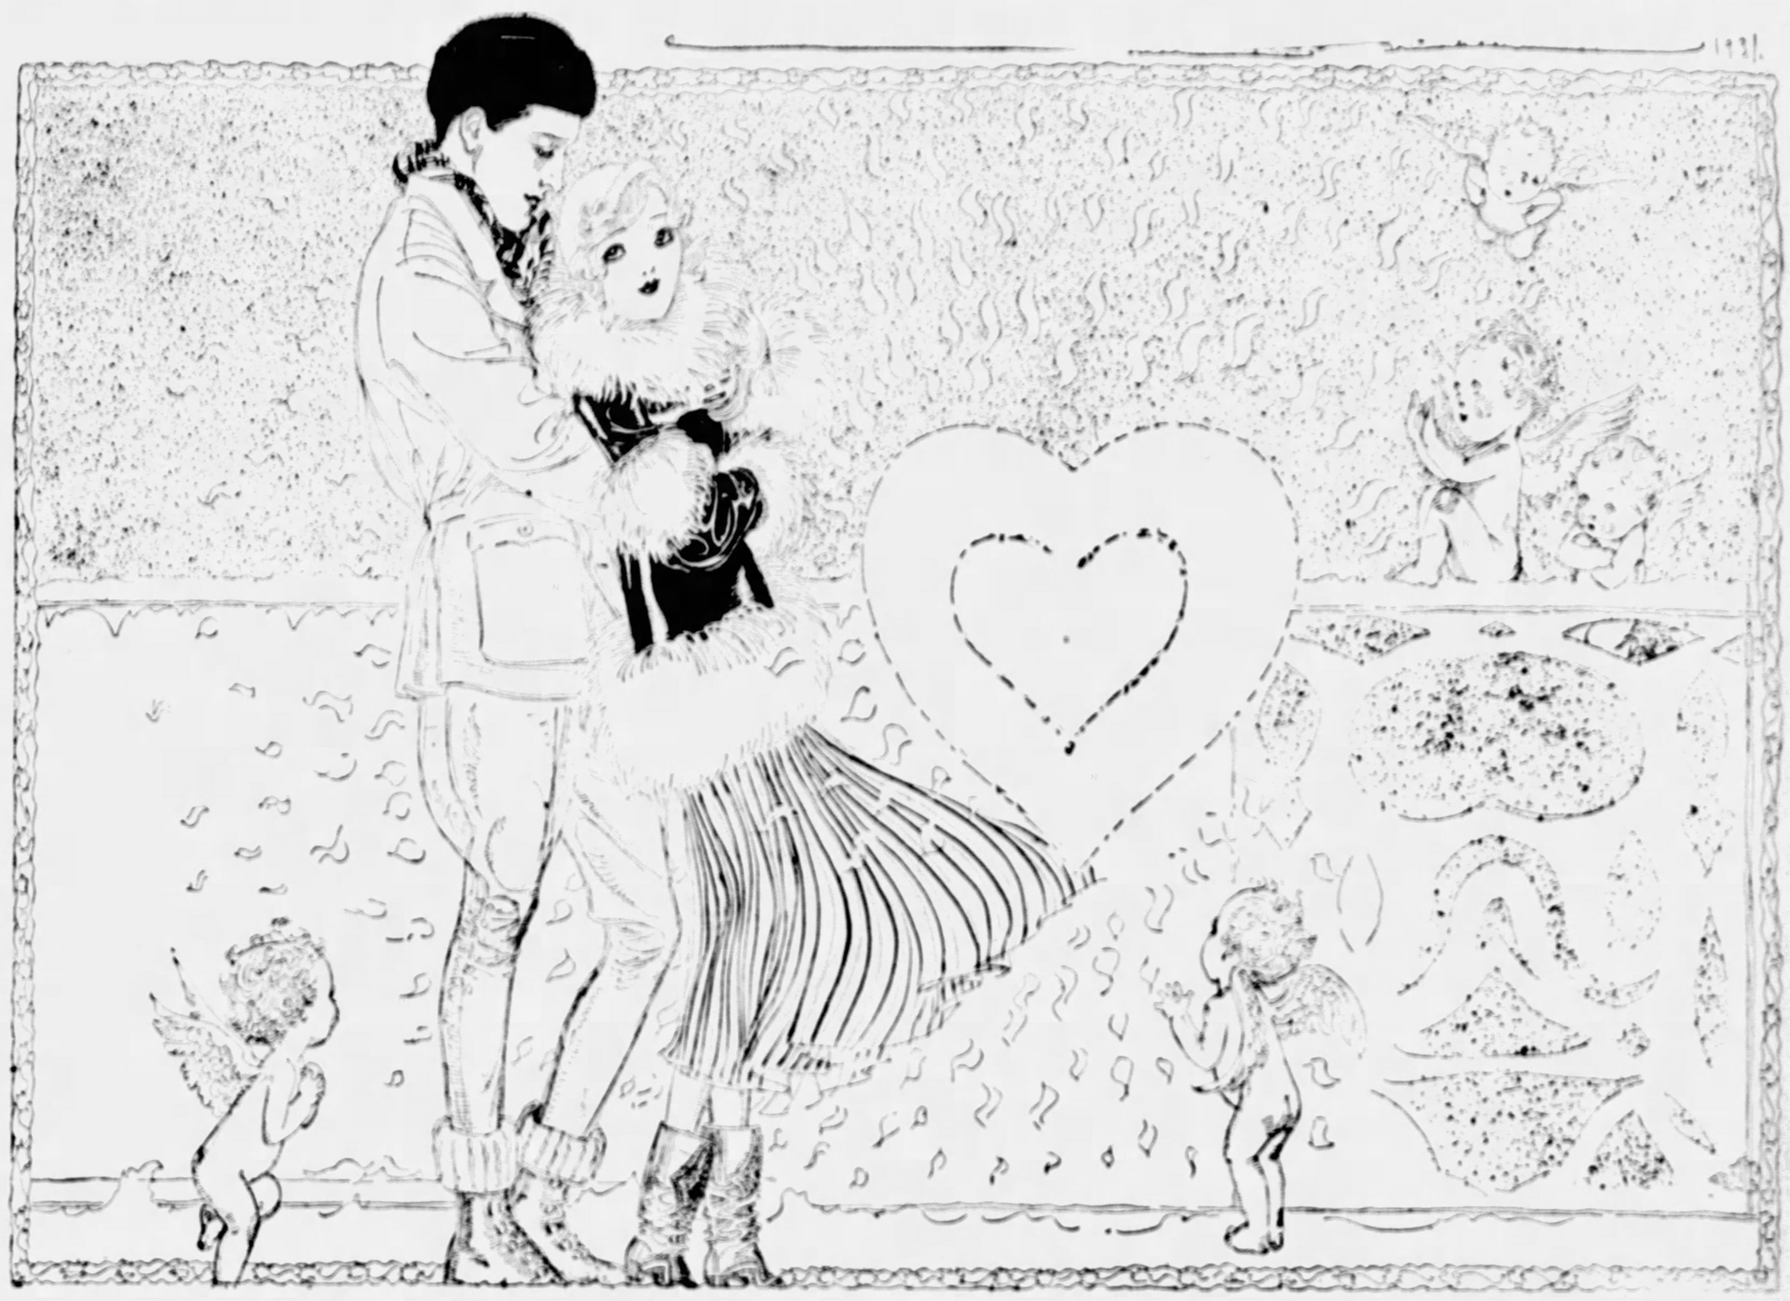
"WARM HEARTS"

Drawn by Nell Brinkley



Warm hearts do not burn for the ease of TWO alone. The whole world draws to them, rubbing grateful palms, warming a chilled breast, holding a world-weary head and foot to the bright, kind flame. A warm heart is a radiator, sending out little tongues of comfort to the most obscure places, remote to the awareness of the possessor of the kind heart. Many strange hands reach out to them. Many strangers to ease draw near out of the cold dark; like a deer to the bonfire in the woods. Drawn by the brightness, and the look and sound of cheer. Many a writer registers a good heart to the end of the world, and perhaps to another life.

Jack and Jill set out in the rime and snow. They carry their burning hearts with them, like live coals. And the shiny-nosed, red-nosed Cupids come sailing from hither and yon to warm themselves at the blaze of two ardent hearts. My, my, butter in a hot pan isn't in it to the soft ecstacy of warmth they feel!

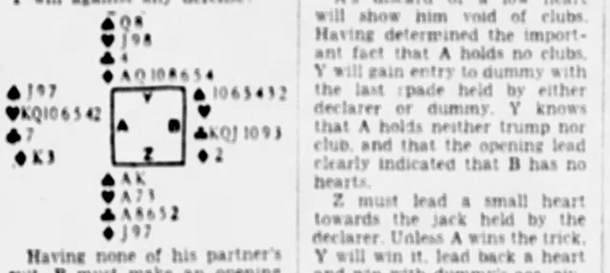
How Many Tricks Can Y Win at Diamonds?

As stated yesterday, Z made an opening bid of 1-clubs on the hand shown below; A overcalled with 2-hearts; Y bid 3-diamonds; B passed; Z offered a tentative declaration of 3-no trumps; A passed; Y's hand did not appear suitable for no-trumps, so he bid 4-diamonds, which Z carried to 5-diamonds. How many tricks can Y win against any defense?



Having none of his partner's suit, B must make an opening lead of one of the three remaining suits; a spade lead does not appear as promising as a club, which A may be able to trump; evidently Z must hold five clubs; B has six, so that only two cards of the suit are missing. As a matter of fact Z will win the first trick whether it is clubs or spades. If B leads his singleton diamond he will only make Y's task easier.

Suppose that B leads his top club. Procedure will be as follows: The trick will be won by Z, and his jack of diamonds will be led through A. If A covers, Y will win the trick, then take one more round of trumps to capture the last opposing diamond; if A does not put up his king, the jack will be allowed to hold the trick, and another lead of diamonds will clear the suit. Having pulled all opposing trumps Y will put dummy in the lead with a spade, returning a club and trumping it.

A's discard of a low heart will show him void of clubs. Having determined the important fact that A holds no clubs, Y will gain entry to dummy with the last spade held by either declarer or dummy. Y knows that A holds neither trump nor club, and that the opening lead clearly indicated that B has no hearts.

Z must lead a small heart towards the jack held by the declarer. Unless A wins the trick, Y will win it, lead back a heart and win with dummy's ace, giving A one heart at the end of the hand, and making six-odd. If A wins the heart trick it will be his last trick. If he leads back his heart dummy will win one trick in that suit and declarer will win another. If A leads back a spade, Y will discard a losing heart, and dummy will trump; then Z will win one heart trick with his ace, giving only one heart trick to A, because Y has discarded one card of that suit. It is impossible to prevent Y from making a small slam.

Madge Takes Up Thread of Her Play

My hands were suddenly clammy as Lillian linked arms with me, and said that I "couldn't stall any longer. We must tackle that third act." Ever since she first had voiced her proposal that I spend the night in dictating to her and to Katherine the lines of the third act of my play, I had been in the state known to thrill writers as a "blue funk." It seemed so fantastic and hopeless a thing, this proposal of hers to finish the first writing of any third act before Philip Veritzen should arrive upon the morrow for a reading of the play, that even my remembrance of the complete mental outline I had made was gone as if it never had existed. With that fresh in my memory, the prospect of dictating so many words would not have daunted me, but with it gone—as I went silently with Lillian up the stairs, I said to myself grimly, desperately, that my much-vaunted memory had failed me just when I needed it most.

As we reached the door of my room, Lillian released her arm from mine, and then swung me around facing her, with her hands gripping my shoulders. Her eyes were mirthful, her face cheery, but I could not feel heartened.

"After all," she gibed, "there is neither a guillotine nor an electric chair in that room, although one would think by the look of you that this was your last walk, through the little green door."

"It will be—the door of failure," I said despondently.

Her hands tightened their grip upon my shoulders, and she shook me slightly, but with a touch of exasperation in her manner.

"I wish I knew what was the matter with you," she said. "It isn't like you to quit in the harness like this."

She did not add, "and leave the other horse to pull all of the load," but I caught the implication in her tone, and reacted to it as I might to a whip cut, not stopping to reason out until afterwards that Lillian shrewdly had used the one comment which would act as a spur to my lagging will and vanquish the inertia which had seized my brain.

I threw up my head and moved slightly toward my door. She instantly took her hands from my shoulders, and, following me into the room, went directly to the miniature theater Philip Veritzen had given me upon the preceding Christmas. Katherine had left its lights turned on—there was no omitted detail in the completeness of Philip Veritzen's gift—and the tiny doll actors were in the wings as we had left them when Lillian's triumphant gibe to an absent mentor—"That's the time we scored on you, Mr. Philip Veritzen," had died abruptly at the sound of the motor horn which signalled the arrival of the Vertizens and their guests.

Katherine was not in the room, but she evidently had heard us coming up the stairs for she appeared at the door just as Lillian put her hand upon the absurd little asbestos curtain with which Philip Veritzen had provided the theater.

"Curtain just rising?" she queried.

"At once," Lillian said briskly, taking up Philip Veritzen's role of director where she had laid it down upon his unexpected arrival. "Come on in and take that carbon copy away from Madge. She doesn't need it, she remembers every comma in the darned thing, and I want you to read half the roles. Madge will take the others, and I'll do the heavy directing, bawling out and all the rest of it. Madge you'll have to propel the actors gently but firmly from place to place, for you're the only one who knows where they belong."

Her comment upon my "quitting in the harness" had spurred me into action, but this direction gave me my first ray of hope. I saw what, in my mother-in-law's parlance, she was "up to," and I voiced my thought questionly.

"You want us to run through the first two acts before getting to work on the third?"

"What else?" she retorted. "There's everything in oiling the hinges."

"You mean," I queried, "that by the time I get through with reading the first two acts—"

"That the dohickey you call your brain will go on with the third automatically."

"Provided, of course, that there are no interruptions," Katherine amended with decision. "Where are all the rest of the inmates of the madhouse tonight?—any of 'em locked in their cells as yet?"

"Dicky's mother, Madge's father and Roderick and Junior are safely in bed," Lillian answered. Marion, Mary, Bill and Hank are dancing with instructions to go to bed not later than 11, and to say good night for us to Dicky and Harry who were last seen escorting the Veritzen 'family' to their car. I think we're safe from interruption."

"Sorry," Katherine said briskly, "but right here's where I beg to differ and all the rest of it."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

See Dentist If You Have Trench Mouth

Recently I had a letter from a prominent dental surgeon living in Manitoba. He was not quite satisfied with the reply I made to one of my correspondents, who had asked regarding "trench mouth." I quote briefly from his letter.

Dr. Copeland

"Having had experience with thousands of cases of 'trench mouth,' I venture to suggest, first, that the treatment of this disease is entirely within the special field of the dentist, and, secondly, that nearly every case requires some operative treatment in the mouth. I quite appreciate the relation of general health and diet to this disease, but I still believe that the patient should see his dentist first."

Vincent's angina is a disease of the mouth, first described in 1853 by an American dentist. During the World War this disease was commonly found among the British and French troops and there received the name "trench mouth."

Trench mouth is an inflammation of the tissues caused by certain bacteria. The swollen gums are spongy and bleed easily. There are tenderness and pain when the teeth are brushed. The breath has an offensive odor and there is a bad taste in the mouth.

In severe cases there is pain on swallowing, the teeth are loose and there is an excessive amount of saliva in the mouth. Sometimes there are marked constitutional disorders, such as lack of "pep," an inability to work and mental depression. The disease may be serious. In that event high fever will be observed, as well as profuse bleeding from the mouth and extreme prostration.

The disease is easily transmitted from one individual to another. An afflicted person should avoid kissing. His tableware and glasses should be kept separate to prevent the spread of the disease.

Trench mouth should never be neglected. When properly treated the disease can be completely cured. If neglected it runs on indefinitely.

The treatment consists of the application of antiseptics to the infected area. In addition to this treatment, specific medical attention, or surgery, and general advice are necessary.

If you have trench mouth or suspect you have, you should see a good dentist. If by any chance you can reach a high-class dentist who saw service in the World War, that is all the better. There were so many cases in the armies that experience gained there is sure to be useful.

However, every progressive dentist is keeping abreast of all the advances in dental knowledge. Cavities of the teeth, inflammations of the gums, pus pockets, dead teeth and incomplete bridge work must be attended to by your dentist, if a permanent cure is to be hoped for.

Even after the infection has been cured, it is important that proper care of the mouth be taken. You must make sure the cure is complete.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Use the Fork

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have read your columns on correct manners and they have been exceptionally helpful and interesting. I try to keep the most important ones, but now and then I find that I have left out something that I think I need. Did I interpret your reading correctly when I say that I saw your advice that it is correct to eat layer-cake with the option of the fork or fingers?

Would you distinguish just which cakes may be eaten with the fingers and which would socially require the fork?

I am very thankful for this personal attention and sincerely hope that your continued success will never grow less as the years go by. Wishing you abundance of health and happiness. MALE READER.

What an exceptionally gracious gentleman you are . . . you made me very happy by your friendly and appreciative letter. Thank you for it and for your good wishes.

No, dear sir, I wouldn't ever suggest that layer cake should be eaten in the fingers if I could possibly find a fork nearby. Most layer cakes . . . bless their hearts . . . are goo-y, and this means, of course, that inevitably, if we eat them in our fingers, our fingers become soiled.

And this brings us to the fundamental rule about the way to eat cakes, or really any other kinds of foods: if they are really dry (like a cracker or "biscuit"), we may eat them in our fingers, but if they even approach the classification of being "moist" we had best eat them with a fork.

That good old Ward McAllister rule. . . "If possible, use a fork" . . . is the perfect one to remember about eating cake, as it is about eating almost any kind of foods.

Greeting the Doctor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Kindly advise me whether it is correct for a patient or client of a physician, attorney, or banker, to greet him, after having consulted him at his office several times, with the following:

"Good afternoon, Dr. (or Mr.), how are you today?"

If the relationship is as casual as this would indicate, it would be in better form for the patient or client to say the more conventional "How do you do, Doctor Graham," or "Good afternoon, Mr. Maltby."

Remember that always, after the title of doctor, we should add the name.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The gal with the long thin face must be careful how she places her rouge. It should be made to glow in the center of the cheek and spread across rather than lengthwise. A straight fringe on the forehead gives the elongated phiz a better contour, and if the hair bounces a bit at the ears, so much the better.

Even normal, healthy hair shows a suicidal tendency now and then, packing comb and brush with loose ends. It is having a clearing out of dead tissue. During this moulting period it is likely to be temperamental, won't stay put according to the usual coiffure program and behaves in an unreasonable manner. Calms down if given a little extra care. It should be brushed vigorously once a day. Every hair that comes out is no good; so the sooner out the better. Hot oil applied the night before the shampoo acts as a stimulant and puts the scalp in good condition.

Household Hints

A little turpentine added to grate polish will give a quick and brilliant shine.

Add a quarter of a teaspoonful of baking powder to potatoes when mashing them and they will be light and fluffy.

If a tablespoon of water is put into the pan before frying bacon it will prevent the food from shriveling and the fat from splashing the stove.

To take away grease marks from marble, mosaic, stone work, etc., make a stiff paste of rough pipe-clay and water, spread thickly over the mark, leave one hour, then brush it off.

When frying fish, instead of using an egg (if you have not got one handy) to brush over the fish before the breadcrumbs, mix a little custard powder with either milk or water to the consistency of thin cream, and use in place of the egg.

An apple placed in the cake tin will keep the cake always beautifully moist.

Batter puddings can be made lighter by adding two teaspoonfuls of ground rice to the flour before mixing.

Take an onion and cut it in half. Rub well over the outside of new pots. This will prevent "sweating," which causes cracking.

Lemon juice is very useful for ink stains. Rub the juice on the mark at once, leave for five or ten minutes, then wash off with milk, and the stain will disappear.

When furniture has a dull, sticky appearance, wash it with warm water to which vinegar has been added in the proportion of a teaspoonful to a pint. Dry well, and leave for a few days before using furniture cream.

No. 627.

AN ORDINANCE—Making appropriations to pay the expenses of conducting public business of the City of Pittsburgh and for meeting the said charges thereof for the fiscal year, beginning January 1, 1932.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the revenues of said City derived from taxes and other sources for that portion of the fiscal year beginning January 1, 1932, and ending December 31, 1932, are hereby appropriated in the sum of $25,—, one ask so to pay the expenses of conducting the public business of the City of Pittsburgh and meeting the debt charges thereof during the said period beginning January 1, 1932, and ending December 31, 1932, and all unencumbered balance of appropriations remaining open upon the books of the City Controller at the close of the fiscal year shall be and the same are hereby created to be reinvested, except such amounts as shall be specially requested by letter from the Director or Chairman of the special activity having the matter in charge, certifying that the amounts requested are required for the purpose for which specifically appropriated, or such amounts as shall be directed to be carried over to the fiscal year 1932 by resolutions or ordinance of Council.

SECTION 2. No liability shall be incurred against any appropriation item in excess of the unencumbered balance thereof, and said appropriation items shall be administered subject to and in conformity with the following terms and conditions:

(a) The heads of the several departments shall prepare their several payrolls for audit by the Controller in accordance with the terms of the ordinance establishing the respective positions and rates of compensation, and no payroll shall be approved for payment by the Controller unless the incumbents and the rates of compensation agree with the terms of said ordinance, and unless the payroll show the appropriation amount or account charge-able with the compensation of each employe included thereon.

(b) There shall be affixed to all payrolls a certificate made by the person preparing such payrolls to the effect that there is a time record on file in said department certified to by a person or persons having knowledge of the facts showing the character of service and exact time of employment of each person named in the payroll, and that the distribution of time as shown on the payrolls is in accordance with such time records.

(c) No transfer shall be made from one appropriation item to another except by resolution or ordinance of Council, and such resolution or ordinance shall in each case set forth the reasons for the request, and be accompanied by a certification from the Controller stating that there is a sufficient balance unencumbered and available in the appropriation item from which the transfer is to be made.

SECTION 3. No obligation shall be incurred to any department of the city government other than for salaries or employees engaged upon city business, except through the issue of an order stating the service to be rendered, work performed or supplies, materials or equipment to be furnished together with the estimated amount of the same. The Director of the Department of Supplies is hereby authorized and directed to provide upon requisition by the head of any department all necessary supplies, materials, equipment and machinery for work department provided, however, that no requisition of any department shall be filled by the Director of the Department of Supplies in excess of the unencumbered balance of the appropriation properly chargeable and that no order shall be issued to the Director of the Department of Supplies by the head of any department of the city government until it has been approved by the City Controller. Payments on account of purchases shall be made from the amount hereinafter appropriated thereto upon vouchers approved by the Director of the Department of Supplies, or by the head of the department of the city government for which the purchase was made, and no payments on account of purchases shall be made from the appropriation for supplies, but all supplies, materials and equipment purchased for the several departments shall be paid for from the appropriation provided for such purpose and when so directed by the City Controller said items shall be reimbursed from the appropriations to the extent of deliveries made from stores.

SECTION 4. Council may, by resolution of the Finance Committee from time to time restrict expenditures from the appropriations made herein, from any of the amounts of expenditure and the periods within which such expenditures may be made and for the transfer of the unexpended balance of any appropriation at any time during the year to any other appropriation or to the general fund balance, and no expenditure shall be made except in accordance with such restrictions.

SECTION 5. The purposes of carrying out the provisions of this ordinance, the sum of $1,000 is hereby appropriated to the Finance Committee of Council, to be considered as part of the appropriation items—

Question a Day:

Please give me some information about Morton Downey and Paul Whiteman, where they were born, how old they are and is it true that Whiteman once was a taxicab driver?—Oscar Grisell, Bellevue.

Answer—Downey was born in Wallingford, Conn., 26 years ago; Whiteman in Denver, Col., 40 years ago. Yes, Whiteman drove a taxi in San Francisco when he was 21. Downey's first job was with Whiteman at $70 a week. The bright spot of Downey's movie career was his marriage to Barbara Bennett, after three weeks' courtship.

Fitzpatrick Determines to Bring Belmonte Gang To Justice

CHAPTER III.

Fightin' Jim Fitzpatrick had four loves in his life. Beneath his rugged exterior beat a stout and sentimental heart. For 20 years he had been wedded to his wife and to his job. He had been true to both. And the day he donned his rookie uniform he led Mary to the altar. She was as proud of him as a flatfoot as she was as a captain.

Then there was little Michael, just turned seven. Pug-nosed, freckle-faced and full of mischief, he was the sun rose and set in his father. And Fitz he would not have swapped his boy for a thousand.

Ed, his younger brother, was like a son to him for ten years older, Jim had educated him, guided him, fought for him and placed him on the police force where he had become a sergeant. Ed's affection for Fitz was the source of constant pride to the man who had completed his own training in the tempered steel of hardest stee. And like steel, he was flexible and bending to Ed's youthful whims and follies. But he watched him with a wary and protective eye.

On the Sunday morning two days after the Belmonte fiasco, Fitz was in the bathroom shaving when his brother Ed, attired in shoes, socks, trousers and undershirt, his hair dishevelled and his eyes bloodshot but gleaming came in. Fitz took one look at him, frowned and shook his head.

"Hitting it up again, eh?" he asked, squinting into the mirror and drawing the razor down his cheek.

"I don't believe you ever were young," growled Ed, taking a seat on the edge of the bathtub and rubbing his head. "I was out on a little party—and what a party—and what a head."

"Yeah, well listen," and Fitz wiped his face with a steaming hot towel. "I got a few things to bust to you—"

"Now, don't start that!" exclaimed Ed.

"No, not that—it's about Belmonte and his mob."

"They'll hang themselves. There's no use worrying. If they killed those Dopey Boys they'll get theirs from the other side. It looks like to me it's better to let them bump each other off—"

"It's murder, though. And Belmonte gets away with it. He rubs them out and he rubs it in. It's a personal fight from now. I'm going to clean up that gang."

Ed shrugged indifferently.

"It's a waste of time. You'll get no thanks. He's got this man's town all sewed up. Got the dough and the drag. You're goin' to step on the toes of some of the big boys who'll make it hot for you—"

"What the hell's the matter with you? You're a cop, ain't you? Or ain't you? Lay down in front of a big slime like that and let him tramp all over you?"

"Don't get personal, papa. Nobody's trampin' over me. I know you've got to lay for guys like Belmonte—that's that."

"That's a dandy line of talk. Listen. You wear a police badge, don't you—"

"Listen yourself—did you see the mornin' papers? I read 'em on the way home last night. I was a little woozy. I'll admit, but the chief made some mighty broad statements — drastic cleanup in the department—and all that."

"Yes, yes. I know, but I thought I could bank on you. I've got a little job for you."

Ed looked soberly at his brother.

"You know you can lay your life on me, Jim. Spill it."

"That's better," and he placed both hands on his brother's shoulders and looked earnestly into his eyes. "Now, I'm going to build up a case against Belmonte that no habeas corpus writs or fixed judges can tear down. Being on the Vice Detail, you get around more than I do. Well, keep your ears and eyes open and give me the slightest tip you get—that's all."

"I start tomorrow morning—right after the lineup. Now lemme wash my funny pan."

Dirty-face Joe's hole-in-the-wall was a grappa joint. To the riff-raff of the river-front underworld he served his hellish liquor, raw alcohol distilled from new grape wine—served it to a motley horde—panhandlers, stevedores, river rats, dope shovers, pickpockets and pallor-faced gigolos who made their living by, from and with women. The floor was covered with sour sawdust, the place foul-smelling, and the tables, used in lieu of a bar, were pitted from the bits of the snag-toothed liquor and embers of smouldering salt-water stogies.

Dirty-face Joe carried his bottle on his hip, served his customers in water glasses and had the reputation of having killed his man with a butcher knife. He got 15 cents a drink and after 45 cents had been collected he either let his customer sleep the effects off or tossed him through the door. One of his regular customers was Humpy the Mushroom, a pinch-faced, saffron-mugged weasel of the holes and dives of the docks.

Humpy the Mushroom sauntered into the place, nodded to two men with caps pulled down over their eyes who were whispering at a table in the corner.

"Gimme a shot, Joe," he hoarsed, without sitting down and reaching out a stunted claw hand which trembled as with the palsy. Joe looked at him without a word and reached out his paw. Humpy the Mushroom grunted and counted out two nickels and five pennies. He was just putting the glass to his lips when Ed Fitzpatrick walked in. Without hesitating, he went straight up to Humpy and knocked the glass from his hand.

"Come on, Mush!" he exclaimed. There was a sudden silence in the room. Dirty-face Joe slunk back against the wall.

"Aw, I didn't do nothin'," whimpered Humpy.

"Just drunk, come on!" was the sharp command. Strong fingers closed around his emaciated arm and Humpy went out of the door unceremoniously. Outside Ed hailed a cab which seemed to be conveniently hovering near. Inside Humpy leaned back and grunted.

"All right, stool, what do you know?" asked Ed.

"That was big-time work—you takin' me out like that admiringly," chirped Humpy. "Get a load."

Ed produced a cigaret and took one himself.

"Never mind the gravy. What do you know about the Dopey job?" he asked.

"Well," shrugged Humpy. "Was there a dame mixed up in it?"

"Dey tell me Dopey was out wit' some blonde moll that night—"

"Was she one o' the Belmonte mob?"

"Dat's what's goin' aroun'. Dey say she was workin' in his office—but I don't t'ink she's workin' dere no more—get me?"

"Okay. What else?"

"Dey say de Belmonte crowd's plenny sore on your bruddy. He better have peepers in de back of his bean."

"What you mean?"

"Dat dey might try'n frame him—see?"

Humpy thoroughly composed and smoking his cigaret with a grandiloquent air, grinned.

"Say," he said, his tone a whine again, "Dat old Kelly—he's after me again for breakin' me parole. Tell him to lay off eh?"

"All right, stool. But what else did you hear, stool, my brother? Come clean or I'll get o'"

"Dat's all I hear—dey're out to get him—see?"

Humpy thoroughly dazed the [illegible] rats," muttered Ed, bitterly.

"I only hears dis—I don't know nothin'."

"Well, you keep your nose clean and your ears open," warned Ed. "Now I'm goin' to let you out a block from headquarters and you stay away from that grappa drive tonight—hear?"

"Ain't you got a buck?" Humpy was whining again. "I gotta have me smoke. You spilled me smoke—"

"An' you didn't spill a thing. If I catch you holding out on me you won't go up the river, you'll go in the river. . . Scram, scum!"

"Hitting it up again, eh?" Jim asked his brother.

Synopsis

Daisy Beaumont, pretty platinum blonde, is sentenced to serve a long term in a reformatory when members of a corrupt police vice squad give false testimony against her. Jim Fitzpatrick, police captain, noted for his honesty and fighting spirit, knowing that Daisy was framed, succeeds in having her freed. When four racketeers are found murdered, Fitzpatrick suspects Guiseppe Belmonte, overlord of a huge vice ring. Belmonte is arrested. The police discover that Daisy is employed by Belmonte. The vice leader's attorney immediately gets busy to have him freed. Fitzpatrick is disgusted when Police Chief Burton allows Belmonte to go free on a writ of habeas corpus. Daisy is arrested again in connection with another case and is released when her innocence is established.

The Hill of Faith

I stand deep-rooted, like an oak that lifts
Its sturdy boughs to every changeful wind
Which down from heaven's boundless chamber drifts
With touch now gentle, now adverse unkind.
Though my tossed branches cringe
before the gale—
The shrieking fury which would beat me down—
However cruelly the storms assail,
In triumph at the end I lift my crown.
The wind of fear, the winds of doubt distrust,
Th' bitter wind of false and futile hate—
Although they seek to bear me to the dust,
Against their shocks, serene
through all, I wait.
As harmless each as some May zephyr's wraith;
Deep-rooted, I, upon the Hill of Faith.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Today, at 17 Warner neighborhood theaters, boys and girls who have been elected to office in the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, took their places on the stages and conducted the meetings like little men and women.

In many cases this is the first contact with organization that the children have had, and it will mean much to them as they grow older and advance in school. Under the leadership of the managers of the theaters, the officers are taught the formalities of opening, conducting and closing a meeting. They are taught also to co-operate with the members of the club in bringing about the best results.

ENTERTAINMENT FEATURES

The Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club meetings are not all educational. At every meeting there is plenty of fun and entertainment. The talented members of the different groups volunteer their services in putting on stage shows.

Dancing classes are conducted on the stages of several theaters. Lessons are free to the members and as the beginners become more proficient, they are put in the dancing choruses of the juvenile revues. Acrobatics are part of the program at these classes.

If you are not already a member of this great club go to the Warner theater nearest your home next Saturday's Junior Komic Club meeting, and join. All you have to do is to ask for an application blank. When this is filled out you will receive a membership button and card. These will entitle you to all the privileges of the club. Chapters have been organized at the Arsenal, Belmar, Cameraphone, Davis, Enright, Kenyon, Manor, Mt. Oliver, Plaza, Rowland, South Hills, Harris (Etna), Schenley, Prince (Ambridge), State (Washington), Grand (Greensburg), and Memorial (McKeesport).

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

The Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club extends birthday greeting to the following members, who will celebrate tomorrow:

Mt. Oliver: Dolores Ernest.

Arsenal: Ralph Shea, Dale Harbagh, John Gordon.

Belmar: Dorothy Moreth, James Brown, August Valentine, James Holland, Anna Lamia.

Harris (Etna): Louis Brancato.

Schenley: Mildred James, Rowland Jean Hess, Billy Milliken, Jane Brown.

Kenyon: Boddy Fritz.

Manor: Charles Graham, Miriam Hirsh.

Plaza: John Mosco, Herman Spano, Mario Damartini.

Grand (Greensburg): William Hallam.

Memorial (McKeesport): James Turner.

Red Cross Aid

A Welcome Change of Policy Is Announced—Brief Comment on Local News Items.

The change of policy announced by the Red Cross in its decision to do something to relieve destitution in the coal mining towns of Western Pennsylvania and adjoining states is welcome. It would be gratifying if we could proudly decline the offer and say Pennsylvania needs no outside aid in taking care of its destitute; but it is only too evident that we do need it.

The failure of the Legislature to do anything ade- quate for the unemployed and the failure of Allegheny County's Welfare Fund campaign to reach its goal, have vindicated Gov. Pinchot's good judgment in seeking Red Cross assistance and Federal aid. They have refuted the assertions of Senator Reed and President Thomas A. Dunn, of the Chamber of Commerce, that we could get along without help from Washington.

The help that our unemployed desire from Wash- ington is not the un-American dole, but work. There is no other agency capable of furnishing jobs on the same scale as lies within the power of the Federal Government. The expenditure of $5,000,000,000 on public works, as proposed by William Randolph Hearst, would go a long way towards solving the unemployment problem.

Pittsburgh is proud of the good showing made by the army of unemployed whom Father Cox led to Washington. In a throng of 15,000 men entirely free from military discipline, it would have been no more than natural if rowdy elements had manifested themselves and more or less disorderly conduct been in evidence. It spoke well for Pittsburgh that nothing of the sort was seen.

Father Cox's demonstration was far more impres- sive than the Communists' march on Washington at the opening of Congress, not so much because of the superiority in numbers of the Pittsburgh marchers, but because they were not of the type that conducts a demonstration simply to "show off." The Communists cry "Wolf!" so often that nobody is frightened. That is not the case with Father Cox's followers.

Pittsburgh will commemorate next Wednesday the sixty-eighth anniversary of the death of a Pittsburgher who is perhaps better known throughout the world than any other native of the city—Stephen Collins Foster, the song writer. The Civic Club, the Tuesday Musical Club, the Stephen Foster Memorial Association and others who are contributing to the memorial program, deserve much credit.

The Foster exercises serve to remind us of the plan to erect a $500,000 monument to the composer on the University of Pittsburgh campus close to the Cathedral of Learning. About $300,000 has been raised for the purpose. Perhaps the program next Wednesday will bring some additions to the fund. Foster deserves a niche in the Hall of Fame.

The Sun-Telegraph's remark the other day that the County Commissioners had taken a wise precaution in requiring banks designated as county depositories to put up government or municipal bonds as security for the deposits has brought letters from several readers who question the wisdom of the plan. It must be confessed that there are good arguments against it.

It does seem unfair to other depositors that municipalities having bank deposits protected by the bank's bonds should be specially favored in the event of the bank's closing, and that the bank's assets, including the bonds put up for protection of the municipal deposits, should not all be distributed pro rata, if necessary, among all the depositors.

One way by which the favoritism incidental to the present system of protecting municipal bank deposits might be avoided is, as a Sun-Telegraph reader points out, by requiring the banks to furnish corporate surety bonds instead of hypothecating their own securities. But there are some difficulties standing in the way of this, which it would take new legislation to correct.

Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh, announces that commencement exercises will be held next June, and probably thereafter, in the Pitt Stadium, because there is no auditorium in the city large enough to seat all the people who wish to attend. Here we have another good reason why the County Commissioners should erect a commodious Town Hall.

It reflects no credit on Pittsburgh that we cannot seat, except outdoors, the crowds that attend the Pitt commencement, much less a gathering of the size of the Republican and Democratic National Conventions. Pittsburgh needs a Town Hall seating at least 15,000, and the County Commissioners should heed the citizens' mandate, expressed in the bond election, that they build one.

It will be a happy day for Allegheny County when the wrinkles in the voting machine situation have been ironed out. Now comes word that all of the Poole machines, which is the type used here, have been ordered back to the factory by Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, to permit certain alterations. The machines have caused trouble, but it is worth a little trouble to get rid of the much greater trouble that paper ballots have caused.

Reports from game supervisors show that 94,772 legal deer were killed in Pennsylvania last month, and it is believed the final figure may reach 100,000. The herd has now surely been thinned out sufficiently, and the ban on shooting does can be restored. There are those who think too many deer were killed. Pessimistic opinions of the same tenor have been voiced in previous years, yet the hunting proved good the following season.

There will be an entire page devoted to photo- graphs of wild life, taken by Norman McClintock, in the Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph to be published tomorrow. Other interesting features of the section will be a page of pictures of interesting babies and a page of photographs taken many years ago which will bring back memories.

The American Weekly Magazine Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph will tell of a curious series of tragic and comic adventures that have befallen Charlie Chaplin. Other articles have to do with scientific discoveries of the past year, the life of a modern Adam and Eve on a desert island, and various matters that will be found both entertaining and instructive.

Pee-Wee Politics vs. Trade Revival

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works now writing for The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Some of the most important incidents of the last few days, involving the liberties and rights of the people and the confidence of the public in the justice of the courts, are given little publicity. We are more or less familiar with the savagery practiced toward the miners in Harlan County, Kentucky; but there is a new phase just now. Because of the criticism by an editor of proceedings in the court where the miners are being tried for their lives, the judge has excluded the representatives of the paper from reporting the trials.

If this sort of thing can be done we want to know it. It involves the freedom and the dignity of the press. Happily a great lawyer, Newton D. Baker, has been retained to make the test before the Kentucky Court of Appeals. Here is an issue that demands the discharge of a high duty by the bar.

Another Democrat Wins

Another congressional election, and this in 1932, has been fought out in a strong Republican district of New England, in New Hampshire, on the issue of the Hoover administration and has resulted in the election of the Democratic nominee.

The successful candidate is opposed to prohibition, but he confined his campaign to attacks upon the economic and political policies of the administration. He made the President the issue. He did it in a district normally strongly partisan Republican. And he won.

The monotonous uniformity with which the Democratic victories have been following onslaughts on the administration and its tragic fruits ought to convince the Republicans that the renomination of Mr. Hoover spells inevitable defeat at the polls. But what are they going to do about it?

No Possibility of a General Revision

The tariff measure of the House is being attacked from two angles. One element, Republican, complains because it is not a sweeping downward revision; and another group, Republican, is opposed to any interference with the President's present privilege of increasing or reducing taxes without reference to the legislative department where the Constitution lodges that important power.

The first group knows perfectly well that with the Senate and the presidency constituted as at present there is no possibility of a general revision, even if the present international tariff situation, brought about at the instance of Mr. Grundy, did not exist. It also knows that because of the retaliatory action of other nations we cannot act without some reciprocal agreement.

The major part of the business men and financiers have been clamoring for two years for just such action as the Democratic bill proposes. Not one business man or financier of real intelligence has returned from a survey of Europe within that time without one common message—that trade and prosperity cannot be restored until something is done to remove the artificial barriers to trade.

The most common plan proposed has been an international reciprocal agreement among the nations.

This is now assailed by Republican politicians. But these are the men who wrecked our foreign markets with the Grundy bill.

Only One Possible Reason for Opposition

And what possible objections can any one urge against the plan to ask the President to enter into negotiations with foreign governments looking toward reciprocal action in the interest of international trade?

The real hostility of the administration party is found in two other provisions of the Collier measure.

One provides that whenever the pig iron industry asks for another increase in the tariff tax on the people of 50 per cent the consumers shall have a right to representation and participation in the hearings before the Tariff Commission.

There is supreme impudence in this opposition.

Supreme impudence, because it is the only way in which the public interest can be protected. And the Collier measure provides merely that a consumers' counsel shall be employed to protect the consumers' interest.

There is only one possible reason for opposition to a consumers' counsel, and that is that he may interfere with the exploitation of the people.

We have not yet heard one single reason advanced for the opposition to this feature of the Democratic plan.

Means a Return to Constitutional Methods

It is probable that the administration opposition will center on the provision that the Tariff Commission shall report to Congress and not to the President with its recommendations for changes in the rate of tariff taxation. This proposal merely means a return to Constitutional and traditional methods of taxation. It is in harmony with the original thought behind the creation of the commission.

The fight for the creation of the commission was begun by the late Senator Beveridge, Republican, in 1907. It was opposed by Payne and Dalzell, the Republican leaders in the House, on the ground that it would mean an unconstitutional interference with the legislative duty to pass on taxes; and this was answered by Beveridge thus:

"Of course there is no thought of permitting any body or anyone to take over the power to determine taxes. The Constitution takes care of that. The sole purpose of a commission is to assemble facts to be presented to Congress for its guidance in the framing of tariff tax laws."

The flexibility clause turning this power over to the President was never even considered. It came in with the Harding administration.

Has Lost the Confidence Of the Country

But even that did not satisfy Mr. Hoover. In the framing of the Grundy law he asked still more power over taxation which was refused him by the Senate. While the more subservient House responded, it was in that body that the most powerful argument against the transfer of power from the legislative body to the Executive was made, and by James M. Beck, a Republican.

It is the most smashing attack yet delivered by anyone, and we hope the Democrats will read freely from it in any debate the may result. We have no doubt that Mr. Beck will stand by it. It was delivered on May 22, 1929, and may be found in his published speeches, "May It Please the Court."

True at any time that the spirit of the Constitution and the traditions of the nation are against lodging taxing power outside of Congress and in one man, it is particularly true now, that this one man has lost the confidence of the country as shown Tuesday in the election in New Hampshire.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—It's four days now since I puffed a cigaret. And am I fit to be tied! From a heavy smoker I slowed up to three smokes a day. Then I decided to quit temporarily at least altogether. Gather closer and behold Old Iron Will!

So far I have symptoms of everything from sweating sickness to the ear whistles. If the phone rings my hair lifts like a fright wig and walking along the street I often, for no reason, find myself skipping into hippety hops. So much so a smartie yesterday caroled a "Yoo hoo!"

All day I stall to keep from working and it's near midnight when I get going. But the moment I plop in front of a typewriter my mind begins to wander. Right now it must be somewhere around Gosport, Ind. Maybe it is visiting Aunt Sarah.

If it is I hope she washes its ears, dry cleans its Buster Brown suit and sends it home. It isn't much, but it is about the only thing I have left—it and my dandruff. One thing about my mind before it went on tour, it never bothered me with ideas like many other minds.

Right now, with it wandering when I should be tapping out bright paragraphs, I find myself engaged in knuckle cracking. One knuckle on my left hand is so well trained I don't have to touch it. Just a glance and it pops. And I've sharpened every pencil on the place smack to the quick.

I've chewed sweetening out of a carton of gum, counted pins in all the cushions, shined two pairs of rusty scissors, pulled threads out of a monogram on a dressing gown, trimmed my hair around the ears and tomorrow if they don't put me away, I'm going to tune the piano.

It is getting so now when everybody else drifts out of the dining room for cigarets I sneak into the kitchen and pull wishbones with the cook. And I've never won a pull. Maybe I'm chicken hearted. I believe I'll crank up for a good cry.

My wife never smoked. Her attitude says plainly: "If he was not stewing about this it would be something else." Did you ever think how much a fellow saves by stopping smoking even three cigarets a day? Well, three a day makes 20 a week with one to boot. But who is going to boot it? I've led a decent life, staying home nights and bathing the dogs and here I am nearing 50 and nobody to boot a teeny-weeny cigaretty-wetty. Don't stand there sucking your thumbs, get busy. Never mind. I've quit cigarets anyway. Who snapped my suspenders just then? Better leave me alone, you had.

What gets my goat now is the squeak on the swinging door to the butler's pantry. It never bothered before—just a thin drawn-out squeeeee. But since I stopped it is like a slate pencil through clenched teeth. Funny feeling around jaw hinges and gazookidoes up and down the spine. Buckity! Why call it the butler's pantry? He gets a salary three whopping meals each day and Thursdays off. From now on it's my pantry. The McIntyres are like that. Arouse them and before you know it they yank a pantry right out of your hand.

I'll never forget Uncle Grayson of the Culpepper, Va., Graysons. There was a pantry snatcher. He snatched them all over the world and to meet him he was plain as Valeska Suratt. I used to note his musket when he went hawking and everywhere he would stop to talk to peasants in the field—cracking jokes, singing folk songs and flushing meadow larks out of their beards.

* * *

At that there isn't much to a ciggy after the first puffy. What is this? From then on it's a nagging habit. If you don't smoke you are touched with twitters. Keep smoking and your mouth feels as though the Marx Brothers had been evicted.

* * *

I wish the gold fish would quit skylarking that way. A fat lot they have to be gay about. And if Mayor Walker is so much shy can't he stop that terrible taxicab honking? The big souvenir cigar of the Dreiser-Lewis dinner is in the other room. What a bum I could make of it in six puffs.

Marry-Go-Round

A Grande Passion

I have come to the conclusion that the secret of all success and happiness in this life is a grande passion. A great Love for something or somebody, besides yourself.

It doesn't matter much, whether your grande passion is for work, for beauty, for humanity, for painting, for music, for homemaking, for gardening—or for just one human being. But, if you have never yet felt some all-absorbing and enduring grande passion, you are going through the world dead from the ears up.

Nothing worth while has ever been accomplished in this world that was not born of a sublime and all-absorbing emotion. No life was ever beautiful or effective without it.

Washington's love for liberty, Edison's love for scientific experiment, Lincoln's love for humanity, Lindbergh's love of aviation, Verdi's love of music—all these were grande passions.

Until you have felt something sublime—a sublime enthusiasm, a sublime love—you will never produce a thought or a thing that really matters or will live.

* * *

Even love of power has made some lives great and important, if not always beautiful. The only really essential thing is that you love something (or somebody) better than you love YOURSELF.

Every woman knows that to die without ever having known the divine spark of a beautiful and sublime love, is never to have LIVED!

I know that it is the fashion to suppress all the emotions. Emotions are regarded by the sophisticates as antique and childish. It is swank to be hard-boiled.

* * *

But, when you suppress your emotions—particularly the emotion of love—you are suppressing the life-force within you.

* * *

Your emotions are your birthright and your most valuable possession. They are the source of all genius, all success, all inspiration and all accomplishment. They are the only real kick you will get out of life.

* * *

If you have no grande passion—if there is nothing or nobody that you love better than yourself, better than your own amusements, better than money and ease and a good time, then you are leading an awfully dull and arid existence. You are dead from the neck up!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Huh, he mighta known it!

All these new-fangled notions about giving females college educations—and now look what's happened!

Cut it right out of a newspaper, he did—an article headed "College Girls Lag in Love," with a statement by a professor himself, Dr. Roy N. Anderson of Columbia University, admitting that only about 50 per cent of college girls marry.

"Now you see!" says he triumphantly. "Doesn't that prove what I've been saying? It sures spoils a girl to give her a college education. Give her notions. Make her uppity. Then no man wants to marry a bold, brassy female like that."

Yes? And you think that Dr. Anderson's statement proves your argument? Not necessarily, brother. The fact that only about 50 per cent of college girls marry doesn't prove that they CAN'T marry, or aren't FIT to marry, or aren't desired in marriage.

It probably simply proves that ladies are more choosey.

As a matter of fact, ladies always would have been more choosey if they could, but they didn't have a chance. What opportunities were open to a woman in 1850? She could have been the village seamstress, nurse or teacher in the Little Red School; but that was hardly an alluring prospect for a lively gal. So all the "likely" female critters of grandma's day married, willy nilly.

But don't kid yourself, stranger, that all the sweet young things rushed up to the altar with tears of gratitude streaming from their eyes. Men were never that much of a treat!

Dig up the old family album. Look at grandma's stern, unrelenting jowl, or her air of riled resignation. Why did all grandmas wear one or t'other of those looks? Grandpa was shy. Males might be heaven's decree for females as an economic necessity, but they never were "prize packages," and grandma didn't fool herself that they were.

And now, with a college degree behind her and a diversity of jobs before her, Miss Twentieth Century lingers and looks 'em over before she decides—and sometimes does not marry at all.

Well, why not? Why shouldn't a smart girl make the best possible use of her life? You certainly don't believe—or do you—that marriage to the average Chinless Charley is the "best possible use?"

"Any port in a storm" was a wise old slogan, and that's why ladies married what they did in 1882.

BUT WHERE'S THE STORM NOWADAYS WHEN A GIRL CAN HUSTLE FOR HER OWN AND TAKE 'EM OR LEAVE 'EM WITHOUT LANDING IN THE BREAD LINE?

And it's a grand thing for this old world that she can. We may not have as many marriages, but we will have more willing marriages, more honest marriages—possibly, in time, more intelligent marriages.

The modern girl doesn't have to ENDURE her man. She takes him because she PREFERS him. She may live to regret that preference, but she'll never be able to tell herself or her children that she was a reluctant martyr to inevitable fate.

And that, if you're old enough to remember how some of our Old Time Mammas used to go beefing around, IS CERTAINLY SUMPIN'!

WORDS OF THE WISE

The more haste, ever the worst speed.—Churchill.

If a book comes from the heart, it will contrive to reach other hearts; all art and authorcraft are of small amount to that.—Carlyle.

The first thing naturally when one enters a scholar's room or library, is to look at his books. One gets a notion very speedily of his tastes and the range of his pursuits by a glance round his book-shelves.—Holmes.

Misery travels free through the whole world.—Schiller.

It has been more wittily than charitably said that hell is paved with good intentions; they have their place in heaven also.—Southey.

He who civilly shows the way to one who has missed it, is as one who has lighted another's lamp from his own lamp; it none the less gives light to himself when it burns for the other.—Ennius.

Do not consider what you may do, but what it will become you to have done, and let the sense of honor subdue your mind.—Claudianus.

Text For Today

And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof: it shall be jubile unto you: and ye shall return every man unto his possession, and ye shall return every man unto his family.—Leviticus, xxv:10.
